-FATHER-MOTHER-DAUGHTER-MR. MAX HEINRICHS is the greatest interpreter of ballads in America, ranking even above George Henschel, and as a master of Schubert and Schumann Songs is without an equal in the world. To this man of singularly strong temperament no phase of life seems foreign. He may roar out the tavern dity of a toss pot so that the hearer would be mad with thirst and then tell in song of the tenderest affections or the holiest emotions without the hearer feeling a shock of the sudden transition; such is the authority of his art.

George Engelke and Joe Edmiston the Victims.

Slaughtered at Night for Their Money.

So Says the Woman Who Was With Hancock.

JUSTICE JOHNSON'S STORY,

Fullerton Officers Investigate Case and Are Satisfied That the Tale is True-Hancock in the San Bernardno Jail.

George Engelke, a veterinary surgeon, known in nearly all the smaller ne, Lack Stahas Pete, Edmiston, a Canadian ranch contractor, who had resided in the vicinity of Riverside for several years, were foully murdered for their monty on a conely across the desert in Southern Nevada a year ago last April. The man who committed the murder is in jail in San Bernardino. His name is John Hancock, and he is an ex-convict, having served two terms for burglary. There were only two witnesses to the murder, one the mistress of the murderer, and the other her seven-year-old son. The woman has made a sworn statement of the matter, upon which the officers have acted, and at every point in their investigations her story is fully corroborated. She has given to the officers certain articles taken from the bodies of the murdered men, and has assisted them in every way possible. For more than a year she lived in constant dread lest Hancock would take her life, and thus remove the only witness whom he feared. His brutality at last forced her to apply to the courts for protection from him, and once that step was taken she seized the opporunity to tell for the first time the particulars of one of the most brutal double murders which was ever com-

The woman now resides at No. 115 East Third street. While she was living with Hancock her name was Mrs. Winfred Myers, but she was married to George D. Gross only day before yesterday, and is now living with her husband. She stands ready to further assist the officers of the law in their efforts to bring the murderer to jus-

That sworn statement, which was nade to Justice Johnson, is perhaps the best told story of the double crime that could be told. It follows:

STORY OF THE MURDER.

"My name is Mrs. Winfred Myers. I left Perris, Riverside county, with John Hancock about the 28th of April, 1897, for Salt Lake City. We traveled in a light spring wagon drawn by two bay horses, one of which was club-footed-I think the front right foot, When we eached Daggett one of the horses gave out and Hancock stole a horse there and drove the animal in the wagon, leading the club-footed horse behind the wagon. About June 15 or 16, we arrived at Pahrump, Nye county, Nevada, about sixty miles north of Daggett. At Pahrump, Hancock worked about three weeks for Mr. White, an officer and farmer, and I was employed the same length of time in Mr. White's diningroom. One day before leaving Pahrump, we met a man named Dr. George Engelke and his driver, 'a tall man whom Mr. Enkelke called Joe. I did not learn Joe's surname. Both Engelke and Joe said they were on the road to Ogden, Utah. Mr. Engelke informed us that he was a veterinary surgeon and had been practicing his profession in Anaheim, Riverside, San Bernardino, Redlands, Los Angeles and San Diego Cal., but was then on his way to Ogden to visit his mother and sister whom he had not seen for a number of years. The doctor said he was going to surprise the family, as he had no written them that he was coming to pay them a visit. As Engelke and Joe and Hancock and I and my little sevenyear-old son were going in the same di rection for several hundred miles, we all agreed to travel together. After having traveled together three days we stopped on the summit of a long sand hill, I think about seventy-five miles north of Pahrump. At about 2 o'clock p.m. on Saturday, the third day out was arrested in San Bernardino last from Pahrump, Hancock said he wa broke and that he believed Dr. Engelke at Fullerton, where he is wanted on a and Joe had money and by killing them charge of assaulting a man with a he would get their money and also their deadly weapon, and on the additional team and he would leave his own charge of threatening the life of his wagon and the poorest horse on the former mistress. Captain of a Fishing Schooner Claims to Have Picked Up Some of the Wreckage-Was Bound to New York via Havana.

IBY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.1 SANTIAGO, Nov. 2.- [Explusive Dispatch.] The rumor that the government transport Panama went down in a gale n the Windward Passage off Cape Maysi yesterday, and that few of her pasesngers or crew escaped, has caused great uneasiness here. There is no telegraphic communication between Santiago and Cape Maysi, and it is therefore impossible to verify the story at present. The report was brought by a fishing schooner this morning. Maj. Kirches Made a Democra Against His Will. [ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

LACROSSE (Wis.,) Nov. 2.-A very unusual action was brought in the Cir-cuit Court here today, and as a result Maj. J. C. Kirches of the Third Wisonsin Volunteers, a Republican, is compelled to accept the nomination for Sheriff of Lacrosse county on the Dem-ocratic ticket, against his will.

While the major was in Porto Rico, the Democratic convention nominated him for Sheriff without his consent or knowledge. His regiment has just returned from Porto Rico on sixty days' furlough, and he did not reach home until Monday, two days too late to file his declination of the nomination. He refused to run, and the County Clerk refused to put his name on the official ticket. Democratic County Chairman Mahoney then brought an action in the Circuit Court to compel the County Clerk to place Kirches's name on the ticket, and won his case. Judge Wyman in his rulings held that the law required that a declina-tion be filed nine days before the elec-tion, and that it was not for the court tion, and that it was not for the court to put any different construction on the statute, and therefore Maj. Kirches's name must go on the ticket. Maj. Kirches made an excellent record in Porto Rico as an army officer, and it is conceded that he will be elected by a large majority, but he is still an army officer. His regiment may not be mustered out until long after he has been elected.

The legal fraternity in this city say this is the queerest case on record, and a great variety of opinions is expressed by them as to the outcome.

retary Hay Cables Instructions to Minister Merry - This Govern-ment Does not Approve of the Granting of the New Concession IBY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES 1 WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Action has been taken by the administration looking to the maintenance of status quo with respect to the concession of the Maritime Cana Company for construction of the Nica. ragua Canal. Secretary Hay has ca-bled instructions to Minister Merry, under which, through Consul Donaldson at Managua, remonstrances will be lodged with President Zelaya against the concession his government has awarded to Messrs. So far as the administration is con cerned, its objection to the transfer of the concession at this time lies in the bad effect it will have upon Congress, which would hesitate to vote the gov-ernment aid so necessary to the con-struction of the canal.

TEXAS ELECTION. The Proposition to Pension Confed-

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.] AUSTIN (Tex.,) Nov. 2.-Return ere at the State capital from the State election are still so meager that the result is in doubt, although it is believed today that the returns from the country will defeat the pension amendment.

The hope is expressed here by many that the amendment is defeated, as in seeking to pension Confederate soldiers it will cost the State $250,000 to begin with, while an increase to $1,000,000 annually in a very short time is probable.

eeling at Paris is That Spain is Irrational-The Dons Cannot Be Surprised at America's Decision to Take the Islands.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.] LONDON, Nov. 2 .- [By Atlantic Caole.] The Berlin correspondent of the Standard says: "Russia and another power are credited with the intention of intimating to Washington that the annexation of the Philippines must be preceded by a common agreement on future action in certain circumstances. "The German papers express their feelings very frankly. The Hamburgerische Correspondenz says: 'The United States is conducting the peace negotiations as they conducted the war. The mask of humanity is being gradually dropped revealing the brutal hand of strength. When the protocol was signed, not a foot of Philippine soil was in American hands. President McKinley demands the complete surrender only because victory in the forthcoming elections depends upon it. The American demand, however, is less a blow to Spain than to the European powers, which seem desirous of selecting naval stations in the Philippines.

"The Boersen Courier admits that the powers have no cause for interfering, but urges them to watch American expansion with jealous eyes.

"The National Zeitung says: "If Spain can obtain compensation suffidebts, she would be better off without the islands. Looking to the commercial and strategical value of the Philippines, we should not be surprised at resistance on the part of some of the powers. Moreover, it is evident that the inhabitants will not calmir acquiesce in American annexation

"The Frankfurter Zeitung thinks that after the elections the American Comnissioners are likely to make some concessions, since the chief question is rather how to conquer the Philippine Islands from the inhabitants than how to overcome Spain's resistance."

A RUPTURE FRIDAY. [ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.] LONDON, Nov. 2 .- The Paris corresondent of the Morning Post says: "It s expected that a rupture of the peace negotiations between the United States and Spain will be officially announced Friday. The feeling here is that the attitude of the Spaniards is irrational. in view of the financial proposals of the United States, and that they may ultimately regret having failed to agree quickly with the adversary.'

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT 1 LONDON, Nov. 3.-The Vienna correspondent of the Times says: "The Spanish Commissioners cannt be surprised, neither can the Spanish government by America's decision to take the Philippines. Possibly the Spanish people were not prepared for it, and the commissioners are pretending surprise so that the government may be petter able to face public opinion. Certainly everybody outside of Spain must have understood that the archipelago

PARIS, Nov. 2.—The Solell today, commenting editorially upon the position assumed by the American Peace Commissioners, says:

"No monarchical government would have dared to conduct itself after the fashion of the Americans, who are forever talking so much of right and liberty. The plan of the Americans is now evident. It is to take all of Spain's colonies and leave Spain the debts of all those colonies. This is the result of the holy war undertaken to insure the independence of the Cubans. What base hypocrisy to these liberals, these democrats, these republicans show?"

of Democratic Hostility is Due to Dread Lest the McKinley Ad-ministration Make a Base Surrender of Conquered Territory.

ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.] NEW YORK, Nov. 2 .- Every seat in after the doors were opened, and a great crowd filled the vast hall before the mass meeting of the Business mass meeting of the Business
s Democratic Association was called to order by Theodore W. Myers, formerly Comptroller of the city of New York. Ex-Senator David B. Hill was the speaker of the night, and his speech throughout was greeted with applause. In the course of his remarks Mr. Hill said: "This terrible anxiety, largely af-of our Republican friends for fear that the war may be renewed in case of a Democratic victory, is really pitiful. It is also difficult to appreciate the apprehension of our opponents that the Democrats may embarrass the President in perfecting his plans for securing permanent peace. "Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, in a speech in this city last week, in one of his flights of fancy said in substance that if his audience was not in favor of placing the people of the Philippine Islands back under the rule of Spanish tyranny, they should vote for the Republican ticket, canal frauds, Raines law, Force Bill and all. I beg to suggest to the distinguished Sena-Raines law, Force Bin and all. I beg to suggest to the distinguished Senator that neither he nor anybody else knows what the policy of the present administration may be as to the Philippines. That policy has never been declared; on the contrary, it has been carefully concealed. The only expression heard from any member of the administration was from the late Secretary of State, Mr. Day, now one of our peace commissioners at Paris, who some time ago publicly announced that he did not favor the retention of these islands. Perhaps he spoke the President's own views, who knows?

"The truth seems to be that the Democratic hostility which is apprehended springs from a Republican fear that some unduly-liberal, over-generous terms of peace, involving a base surrender of some of the conquered terrtory, may be approved by the administration, to which Democratic opposition would naturally be expected.

The suspicious delay in the peace ne gotiations, which will undoubtedly no permitted to be concluded unti-er election, confirms this view of the situation."

Taking up the financial question, exSenator Hill said:

"The amount of the silver bullion in question in the treasury thus required to be coined into alleged '50-cent dollars' is sufficient to occupy our mints in coinage for the next two years, and there seems to be no necessity, from a practical standpoint, of getting excited over propositions for additional coinage at some future date, which may never materialize. Chestnut Vendor Finds Valuable Sc eurities and Delivers Them.
[A. P. EARLY MORNING REPORT.]

NEW YORK, November 2.-When swarthy, solemn-eyed Italian stepped into the barking house of Farson, Leach & Co., No. 35 Nassau street, threw a package on the counter, with a "Thata for you," and then started to walk out, there was a chorus of clerks calling him to come back.

clerks calling him to come back.

An hour before, a messenger from another financial institution started out ot deliver packages of more or less value. He knew he had one addressed simply "Farson, Leach & Co.," without the firm's street or number, and he was not aware that the envelope contained securities aggregating $25,-900. When he stepped into Farson, Leach & Co.'s place the package in question was missing. To make known his loss and stop payment on the government bonds in Washington and at the sub-treasury here, was the work of a few moments. Still the securities were negotiable at any bank in the United States.

The envelope which the Italian had so carelessly tossed over to the bank clerks, contained the missing securities. He was called back, and taken into Mr. Leach's private office. His story was very simple. He was a chest-nut peddler, and stood in Cedar street. He picked up the envelope from under the feet of the crowd that thronged past his stand. He saw the name on it, but as he could not read English he stopped a pedestrian and asked him what the writing was. The man told him, and also gave him the location of the office. He had delivered the package. It was only a little way from where his stand was. He did not want any reward. The only thing that is puzzling Mr. Leach is what to do for the finder, but substantial recognition of his act will be made.

Donaldson, collector of customs, has filed an exhaustive report of the organization, conducting and results of the customs in the province of Santiago, with recommendations for the betterment of the service. The report embraces the statement of the condition of affairs in Santiago, Guantanamo and Baracoa, for September, with the aggregate figures for October in Santiago, Guantanamo and Manzanillo the aggregate figures for October in Stantiago, Guantanamo and Manzanillo. Gibara is not reported, but Col. Hood reports satisfactory progress there.

The organization at present shows the employment of forty men in Santiago, consisting of the collector, two deputies and clerks, guards and boatmen. In Guantanamo, there are ten men, whose salaries aggregate $5000. In Baracoa there are seven employed, with salaries aggregating $2200. The number of men employed at other places is not reported. The report shows receipts from all sources of customs in October to be $44,227, an increase of more than $9000 over last year in Santiago alone, despite the greatly reduced tariff charges. To this add $107,732, brought over from August, and it shows a great increase in customs under the present system, though with a reduced tariff. It is shown by the figures for October that the receipts for Santiago in round numbers are $61,000; for Guantanamo, $5300; for Manzanillo, $3000; a total of $65,600.

Donaldson recommends improvements Donaldson recommends improvements of the service at all ports especially at Guantanamo. Other recommendations are: The free admission of cattle and fresh meats, the present price being practically prohibitive; a reduction of 19 cents to 8 cents per gallon on petroleum; a harbor improvement tax in Santiago to be made applicable to the support and reëstablishment of the Board of Harbor Improvements, with an army engineer and the use of customs stamps, by which it is estimated there would be an additional income of $196,000 annually. The recommendations will probably be favorably received by Gen. Wood.

CUBAN ASSEMBLY.

a Quorum

ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.] WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.-Presiden Masso of the provisional Cuban gov-ernment has cabled from Santa Cruz del Sur to Señor Quesada, secretary of the Cuban delegation here, saying: 'Assembly has not yet met, owing to the absence of quorum.

This was called out by an inquiry by Senor Quesada regarding reports coming by way of Santiago repre-senting the Cuban assembly as in session at Santa Cruz del Sur, and en-gaged in discussing important questions relating to the future of the island, the disarmament of the Cuban army, and the extent of the coopera tion between the former insurgen forces and the United States authorities. It had been stated that the as sembly organized by choosing Gen Garcia as presiding officer, thus indi-cating that the military element under Garcia would dominate the assembly.

There are evidences that President McKinley and his Cabiner have assurances that the action of the Cuban provisional government will not be antagonistic to the policy at Washington, but rather in sympathy with the execution of that policy. Sefior Quesada is satisfied that this will be the course of the Cuban assembly. He said:

"It is only the first step toward a regular and constitutional form of government, and it will give way later to an assembly truly representative of all the people of Cuba. For the present Masso has called together this provisional body, which is necessarily crude because of the unsettled condition of affairs in Cuba. It is not, however, a military assembly, only eight sembly. tion of affairs in Cuba. It is not, however, a military assembly, only eight or ten out of a membership of fortyeight being from the military ranks.
The others are from civil life doctors, lawyers and planters, and represent the best elements in the community.
This assembly will not form a constitution, but will provide for a constitutional convention, which will take up the important work of framing a constitution and establishing a permanent government for the island."

UNHEALTHY CAVITE.

Conditions Last Month Were Extremely Bad.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.] MANILA, (P. I.,) Oct. 8.—[Correspondence of the Associated Press, wired from Chicago, Nov 2.] The health of the troops here at present is far from being good, notwithstanding the statebeing good, notwithstanding the states ments of the Medical Department to the contrary. At Cavite the conditions are very bad. There have been over forty deaths there since September I, mostly from typhoid fever. One-third of the officers of the Montana volunteer regiment are on the sick list, including the colonel and lieutenant-colonel, who are unfit for duty. In one battery alone, over 75 per cent. of the men stationed there have been on the sick list within a month, the officers being affected as well as the privates. The hospital accommodations there are inadequate. The supply of medicines was exhausted at one time, and for days there was nothing medicinally to administer to the patients. The place is unhealthy at best. The men are quartered on ground floors, where it is damp, and in this country, especially, conducive to illness. Many of the men worked themselves ill during the process of cleaning Cavite, but now that the sanitary conditions are being looked after an improved record will doubtless follow.

In Manila, the conditions are better.
The men are fairly well-qartered, and they are being given better accommodations as fast as possible, and it the sickness of the past can be traced to the overcrowding of the men while proper quarters were being prepared.

There have been twelve cases of smallpox among the soldiers so far, six of which have proved fatal. The regimental physicians have advised the whitewashing of the soldiers' quarters and liberal use of corrosive sublimate, but there is not sufficient lime or corrosive sublimate or even a good substitute to be had. Smallpox is always prevalent among the natives, many having it as children. The doctors are doing everything possible to confine it among the natives. No cases have been reported for the past five days. The hospitals, which in the past have been nothing more than death-traps, are being put into sanitary condition. They are abundantly supplied with food, and medicines are now obtainable at a moment's notice. The Red Cross has been grossly mismanged, and has been of little assistance.

Col. Lippincott has steadfastly refused to give out any information to the press from his office up to today, and only then through Gen. Otls. Col. Lippincott said: "With cooler weather, a radical improvement is looked for."

Gen. Otls recently inspected one of the hospitals—the convent hospital, established since the capitulation of Manila, and said it was the finest hospital he had ever visited. For the three months ending October 1, the number of deaths in this army from all causes number four officers and eighty-three enlisted men.

THY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.1 NEW YORK, Nov. 3 .- [Exclusive Dispatch.] While there is no confirma tion of the story received late last night to the effect that the transport Panama was lost in the recent gales off Cape Maysi, Cuba, special dispatches from Santiago give color to the rumor. The evidence given by the vessel reporting the supposed disaster ap pears to be clear that a great quan tity of wreckage was seen, much of which bore the Panama's name.

Congressman Dalgell of Pittsburgh who had taken passage on the Panama, had been in Cuba in the interest of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company He had completed his labors and wa oming home with a former member of Congress, George M. DANGEROUS POINT. The Herald's Santiago, Cuba, special says there were on board several officers of regiments now stationed at Santiago, who were on their way home having been granted leaves of absence on account of illness. Other members of the party which accompanied Representative Dalzell were Dr. Ezra M. Gross of the Keystone Coal and Coke Company, Gressburg. Pa.: Judge Jacob F. Slagle, Common Please Court, Pittsburgh, and J. H. Crawford, civil engineer, in the employ of the Pennsylvania Railroad. The Panama was bringing back to the United States several pieces of ordnance and soldiers who are ill from several regiments, many being from the Third Immunes, a Georgia regiment which has been the greatest sufferer from fever of the regiments which went to relieve the Fifth Army Corps.

The regiments now at Santiago are the Fifth United States Infantry, Twenty-third Kansas, Eighth Illinois and Second, Third, Fifth and Ninth Immunes. The Panama had on board the bodies of these soldiers: Capt. W N. Dickinson and Lieut. Dennis M Michie, Seventeenth Infantry; Lieut, Thomas A. Wansboro, Seventh Infantry; Sergt. M. D. THE NEW MONITORS.

The Navy Department has decided not to waste the $5,000,000 appropriated at the last session of Congress in building four single-turret monitors on original plans for which the contracts were awarded a month ago, but will make new contracts for vessels with double turrets, double coal capacity and a thousand tons greater displace One of these contracts made by the Union Iron Works, San Francisco, for construction of the Wyoming for $875,000.

At a meeting of the Board of Con struction yesterday at Washington, it was unanimously recommended that the contractors should raise the displacement of the monitors from the original 2700 tons to 4000 tons, substi tuting four 10-inch rifles in two turrets for the single turret with twin 12-inch guns and providing for 400 tons of coa

The general went into a discussion of the complex system if our war regulations. He said he considered the weak point in Camp Thomas was its had sanitary conditions. There were over six hundred licensed hucksters who visited Camp Thomas. Much lemonade was sold. He believed Gen. Brooke tried to do all he could, but was surrounded by a medical board which did not appreciate the serious condition.

Dr. Griffith was unnecessarily alarmed. He examined Chickamauga Creek, where the in-take was located. An engineer officer examined it and pronounced it bad. When asked whether high medical officials at Chickamauga paid close attention to their duties, Gen. Sanger said: "I don't know about others, but saw a great deal of Dr. Huldekoper, who came through our division frequently."

Gen. Sanger thought Chickamauga would have been a healthy place for Gen. Sanger thought Chickamauga would have been a healthy place for a camp had the proper precautions been taken, and pure water furnished. ROMEYNE FINDS FAULT.

rying the testimony of Maj. Romeyne, a retired army officer. He said that he had asked at the beginning of the war for a military assignment to go to the front in his capacity as an officer but it was refused, and he then went as a correspondent of a weekly newspaper.

His testimony covered the embarkation of the troops at Port Tampa and the campaign in Cuba. He said that when he went to Port Tampa the bank of the canal there was covered with troops. He had wanted to go over with the Tenth Infantry, which was his old regiment, but no one could tell him where the regiment was to be found. He asked a staff officer for this information, but none knew, nor did any particular troops were to embark. There was great confusion, as a consequence of which a part of a regiment would go on one vessel and a part on another, and the regiments were thus separated from their stores. He had seen no order for the systematic embarkation of the troops, and he had heard it said that they were told to go aboard helter-skelter.

When asked to express an opinion as to the preparation for the embarkation the witness hesitated, saying that to do so would involve the criticism of his superiors. The commissioners insisted upon a reply, and Romeyne replied that he did not think the preparations were such as they should have been.

"There was," he said, "a lack of surf-boats, and also of order and of preparation for landing. When the the ships indiscriminately, parts going at one time and other parts at other times."

He told of the efforts to tow two lighters over to Cuba, but said that one was lost, and that it was the impression that it was lost on purpose because it retarded the progress of the fleet. In response to a question from Gen. McCook, Maj. Romeyne said that, while it was difficult to land anything, ambulances and wagons could have been landed as easily as the artillery. He had seen only one ambulance to the front at the battle of El Caney, and it was not used for conveying wounded to the rear. So, speaking of other incidents of this battle, he said there was general surprise that an inflated balloon had been carried at the head of the attacking column, thus indicating to the Spaniards the exact location of the attacking column, thus indicating to the Spaniards the exact location of the troops, but he did not know at whose orders this had been done.

He said the town of Sibonev was without exception the dirtiest place he had ever seen. No effort had been made to clean it up before the fever broke out. There was a deficiency of proper food at the fever hospitals, and the fever hospitals, was liable to contract yellow fever. He had been a patient in the hospital, and said there had been no neglect of patients by the medical attendants at this hospital, or at the hospitals for the wounded. He has known surgeons in the latter hospitals to work for sixty hours without cessation.

"Why did they not have more surgeons?" asked Col. Denby.

The witness said he could not answer.

Maj. Romeyne said he had come north as a convalescent with many other convalescents on the transport Concho, and he criticized the provides in some said of the vessel in severe terms. Many of them were compelled to sleep on board bunks without blankets or pillows, and were not covered at night except by the cotton uniform which they wore during the day.

"The water was offensive to both sight and smell." he said, "and the food was poor and scanty, none being provided especially for convalescents. The meat was canned and inferior, and much of the hard tack mouldy."

He also stated that there was only one physician on board, and that he was a convalescent. Six men had died on the way up, and Maj. Romeyne expressed the opinion, in response to a questiom from Capt. Howell, that, with proper attention and good food, the lives of at least some of the men could have been saved. He said he was unable to place the responsibility for the neglect, but that the captain of the vessel had stated that when he made application to go to Jamaica for fresh food and water, before starting on the voyage from Santiago, the request was refused.

Gen. Wilson, ex-Governor, and Capt. Howell go to Camp Meade for the purpose of inspecting that camp.

NEGROES MUTINY.

Refuse to Obey Orders of the White Officers. [ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

CAMP POLAND (Tenn.,) Nov. 2. The camp of the Sixth Virginia Regi-ment, colored, was this morning the scene of a mutiny among the men of that command. The men in several companies refused to obey commands or orders issued by the nine white officers who were recently assigned to the cers who were recently assigned to the regiment by Gov. Tyler of Virginia. The officers assumed command of the various companies a few days ago, and there has existed during that time a feeling of discontent among some of the negroes, who preferred to be commanded by officers of their race.

The feeling has grown until it evidenced itself this morning in a positive

The feeling has grown until it evidenced itself this morning in a positive declaration against the white officers. The regiment was called for drill at the usual hour, and the white officers assumed command. To their surprise and indignation, the negroes refused to execute the drills, and when pressed or an explanation it was ann was the cause. The officers were inclined to the opinion that it was a momentary complaint, and accordingly sent their companies out under colored lieutenants.

At police formation the same open disregard for orders from the white officers was apparent, and it was then determined to report the matter to higher authorities. Col. Croxton, commanding the regiment, reported it to Col. Kuert, a division commander, who in turn visited the camp with Maj.-Gen John Bates, who arrived in the camp John Bates, who arrived in the camp for the first time a few minutes before in turn visited the camp with Maj.-Gen John Bates, who arrived in the camp for the first time a few minutes before the mutiny began. It was evident that serious trouble was in order, if the riotous negroes were not quieted, and on that account Col. Kuert at once orwered the Thirty-first Michigan and Sixth Ohio regiments to the scene.

These regiments were under arms, but the Ohio boys were turned back before reaching the Virginia camp.
Cols. Kuert ans Croxton and also Maj.
Johnson, a colored officer of the regiment, addressed the men. They explained that such action was in direct violation of military laws, and was punishable by death, and that a continuance of the same would bring the regiment into most unfortunate disfavor. They assured the men that a complaint, if such they felt that they rightfully had, should be forwarded to the Governor of Virginia, and they were assured that such a complaint, sent through the proper channels, would receive attention from all officers concerned.
Col. Croxton stated very emphatically that a continuance of the revolt would mean rigid enforcement of the discipline covering such cases, and said he demanded obedience, and had the power to enforce the demand.
The Michigan regiment, which had appeared upon the scene in doublequick time, and which was armed for battle, was ordered back to its camp, and the negroes agreed to send their complaints in through the military channels, and in the meantime to ooey their white officers. It is not believed here that the white officers will be removed, because it is a fact that the negro officers who preceded them resigned on account of incompetency. The Virginia camp is quiet tonight, and no further trouble is anticipated, at least for the present.

WILL BREAK UP TAMMANY'S SCAN DALOUS PARTNERSHIP.

Republican Candidate Making Tour of the Empire State and Replying to Croker-Says the Latter is Trying to Make Judges

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.] NEW YORK, Nov. 2.-Theodo Roosevelt began his speech-making to the Long Islanders today before the business men of the city had finished their breakfasts, and by noon he had addressed audiences at ten or more stations along the line of the Long Island Railroad. His principal topic was Richard Croker, who last night at-tacked Col. Hoosevelt's administration of the police department during the Mayorality of Strong. At Southampton, for example, Col. Roosevelt said that if the Democratic ticket was elected in the State it meant that every store-keeper in the State would be laid under keeper in the State would be laid under tribute to Tammany Hall.

"Tammany" he said, "already blackmalls vice and collects tribute from those who thrive on vice, but it is now beginning to levy tribute on honesty where honesty is helpless, and if you elect Tammany you will assist in that operation."

The tour of the day closed with two big meetings, one at Flushing at 8 o'clock, and one at Long Island City. At Flushing the hall was jammed to the doors, and Col. Roosevelt received an ovation.

Col. Roosevelt began his speech by asserting that his real opponent was Croker and not Van Wyck, and then proceeded to reply to the former's attack upon his administration of the police department. Col. Roosevelt said in part:

"He attacks my administration of tack upon his administration of the police department. Col. Roosevelt said in nart:

"He attacks my administration of the police department. I should be sorry, indeed, if it had merited his praise. Mr. Croker invoked the testimony of Tweed against Judge Daly, and now he himself testifies against me. Well, he may. He says, in effect, that under my adminitration crime went unpunished. That statement is simply untrue. Near the close of my two years term of service, the presiding Judge of the month in the Court of General Sessions stated that crime had diminished until it was less than ever before in recent years. Mr. Croker does not really object to what we did with crime. What really makes that galled Jade wince is what we did with vice.

"The acknowledged financial partners."

galled jade wince is what we did with vice.

"The acknowledged financial partnership existing between certain leaders of Tammany Hall and protected vice is the scandal and disgrace of New York. It was on this that we warred. I broke up that partnership, and I will break it up again when I have the chance, let Mr. Croker cry ever so loudly. It is small wonder that I should be denounced by those who exact tribute from purveyors of vice, who rob the honest poor and who care as little for civic pride as they do for decency and morality. Every purveyor of vice who pies his vile trade unmolested in consideration of blackmail, which gives the true reason for the existence of the wide-open policy—every such man observed. wide-open policy—every such mar cheers Mr. Croker when he attacks us because we made the police force honest.

"It is fit that Mr. Croker now seeking to corrupt and degrade the bench, should rail at the men who drove out corruption in the police department. He now runs the city through one of his delegates, and swollen with the power which this gives him, virulent in his brutality, she tries to strike down an honest. Judge because that Judge is not his cringing sycophant. If, through another delegate he gets control of the State, the honest men of the State may expect evil times, indeed."

In conclusion, Col. Roosevelt said: "Mr. Croker is striving to render the judges his equally servile tools. He has the Mayor and he wishes the Governor. If the police force and the judiciary, the Executive at Albany and the Executive in New York, all become his supple-kneed servants, his power will be supreme and we have no single way of making effective protest against any extreme of corruption or lawless-ness." "It is fit that Mr. Croker now seek-

drs. Anna Maria Druce Claims He Father-in-Law's Alleged Death and Buria Were Deceptions-Say

PASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.] LONDON, Nov. 2 .- [By Atlantic Caole.] Mrs. Anna Maria Druce, daugh-er-in-law of the late Thomas C. Druce who, she asserts, was in fact and in law the fifth Duke of Portland, obtained a final order in the High Court of Appeals today, directing the Chanellor and faculty of the diocese of London to issue her a permit to open and inspect the coffin, now in the vaults of Highgate Cemetery, alleged to contain the remains of her father-in-law or of a man buried as Thomas Charles Druce. The appeal court dismissed the appeal of Mr. Young, the executor president of the probate, divorce and admiralty division of the High Court of Justice.

Mrs. Anna Maria Druce claims that her father-in-law's alleged death and burial under the name of Druce were deceptions, and that he lived and finally died, after having been under the care of Dr. Forges, at a lunatic asylum of Dr. Harnum. Her son, who she asserts, is the rightful Duke of Portland, and for whom her present proceedings are taken is, or has been until, recently a domestic servant. He was last heard of in Australia.

According to Burke's peerage, William John Cavendish Scott Bentinoke, fifth Duke of Portland, died unmarried, December 6, 1879, and the dukedom passed to his cousin, William John Arthur Charles James, the de facto Duke, who was born December 23, 1857, and married Miss Winifred Dallas-Yorke. Both he and his wife are very popular in London society and entertain lavishly at their numerous estates. A recently published estimate of the Duke's rent roll placed it at something like £400,000 a year.

Mrs. Druce in her affidavits, declares

Mrs. Druce in her affidavits, declares that Thomas C. Druce did not die in December, 1864, as would appear from the official record, and that the coffin in Highgate cemetery which she seeks to examine, does not contain and never contained human remains. Her contention is that Druce, whether from eccentricity or from fear, led a double life, taking various courses for his protection. She says that the mairiage between her late husband's father and mother on October 30, 1851 at New Windsor, Berkshire, in which the names were recorded as Thomas Charles Druce and Annie Mary, was in reality between the Marquis of Litchfield, afterward the fifth Duke of Portland, and the illegitimate daughter of the fifth Earl of Berkeley.

According to her story, the Marquis (her father-in-law.) and his brother, Lord George Bentincke, were both in love with the same woman, but while the younger's suit received the approbation of the girl's father, the latter not only discouraged the desire of the eldest son, but treated him with insult. The climax of the quarrel between the brothers was reached on September 1, 1848, when Lord George was found dead near Welbeck Abbey, it was stated from a spasm of the heart.

Mrs. Druce says that her father-in-law suffered the keenest remorse and abject fear, and that in adopting the name of Thomas Charles Druce he transferred to himself as Druce he transferred to himself as Druce an immense property from himself as Duke of Portland. Realizing the risk of exposure from his double existence, he determined to end his life as Druce, and caused a coffin to be buried with his supposed remains. Even then his fears were not allayed, and he determined to assume madness that, should he ever be accused of a crime height have the plea of insanity to fall back upon. Taking the name of Harner (or Harmer.) and conducting himself in a most extravagant manner, he caused himself to be placed under the care of Dr. Winslow, whom he convinced of his madness, though after a year of incarceration he was permitted to leave

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—The Navy Department is considering the advisability of modifying the plans for the four new harbor monitors by increasing their size from 2700 to 4000 tons, enabling them to carry four 12-inch guns in two turrets, instead of only two guns in one turret. Lewis Nixon, one of the successful bidders for building the monitors, was at the Navy Department today in consultation with Secretary Long on the subject, which was later in the day considered by the board of bureau chiefs.

mation appears to be more exact than that coming from Paris and London. The dispatches today attached much significance to the absence of Baron Courcel, the French Ambassador, from London, and it was stated that France would show her animosity by not continuing an Ambassador at London. The Journal, the official record at the French Embassy, however, says that the appointment of M. Paul Cambon as Ambassador to London to succeed Baron Courcel was officially gazetted September 21. M. Cambon is a brother of M. Jules Cambon, the French Ambassador here, who was conspicuous in the peace negotiations between this government and Spain. He was Ambassador at Constantinople, and is now on his way from that point to London. At the leading embassies there is little idea that the Fashoda affair will lead to war, although there is a very general opinion that the Egyptian question in general may lead to a condict in which other European countries than France and Great Britain may take part. A French diplomat, peaking of the Fashoda affair, said: "There is not the slightest chance that he Fashoda affair alone will lead to var. Although of strategical value, it is practically inaccessible to France, while at the same time easily accessible to England. English ships are now spractically inaccessible to France, while at the same time easily accessible to England. In the other hand, it took Maj. Marchand two years and a half to reach fashoda, and, at best, it would take france two years to reach there along he route from the west coast of Africa and across the Congo country.

"From a military standpoint, thereore, it would be inexpedient, if not impossible, for an issue to be made on fashoda. JAMES BRYCE COINCIDES. Salisbury Right About Fashoda-No

Alliance With America.
[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

LONDON, Nov. 2.—[By Atlantic Cable.] Right Hon. James Bryce, former Under Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, subsequently president of the Board of Trade, and now member Parliament in the Liberal interest for Aberdeen, speaking there this evening indorsed Lord Salisbury's stand in th Fashoda controversy, declaring that the military control of all the navigable waters in the Bahr-el-Ghazel basin, as well as the Nile, must be secured to Egypt.

Referring to the increasing cordiality Referring to the increasing cordiality between the United States and Great Britain, Mr. Bryce said: "I would never advocate a formal alliance. At all events the obstacles at present are serious, but all the conditions exist for a solid and durable friendship between America and Great Britain. They have no adverse interests anywhere in the world, and they have common aims in sundry regions. Everywhere each can render a great service to the other. The Americans and British understand each other better than they can understand any foreign country."

TOM PLATT TALKS.

He Gives Out a Reply to the Dem cratic Managers.
NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—Senator T. out the following state-

"The Democratic campaign managers at the Hoffman House seem to be out of campaign matter. Before Col. Theodore Roosevelt was nominated for Governor, the Tammany tax commis-sioners attempted to question his eligibility. They quickly dropped that issue. They then announced that they eligibility. They quickly dropped that issue. They then announced that they would make an attack upon the judiciary as one of their issues. That did not turn out right. They then muzzled all of their candidates on the money question. Not a single Democratic candidate has been allowed to say a word on this vital issue of the campaign. That issue has proved disastrous to the Democrats, So utterly democraticed are our Democratic adversaries that the latest issue announced by them is a personal slander against me.

"They have caused it to be circulated that I am lukewarm to the candidates of the Republican State ticket headed by Col. Theodore Roosevelt. It would not pay the slightest attention to such a slander if it were not for the fact that our adversaries have paddled their story all over the State. It is a baseless, slanderous falsehood. The Republican party's organization in the State of Greater New York from the most important official connected with it to the humblest man in the ranks, it to the humblest man in the ranks, has been working day and night faithfully and loyally for the election of the Republican State ticket, the Republican candidates for the Legislature and the Republican candidates for Con-and the Republican candidates for Congress.

"The sound-money allies of the Republican party in this fight have also worked as they never worked before. The business men, the workingmen and all classes of citizens are determined that Col. Roosevelt and his associates on the State ticket and all other candidates for office, who stand upon the sound-money principle laid down at St. Louis in 1896, shall, be elected on next Tuesday. Col. Roosevelt's election and the election of his associates on the State ticket is assured beyond the shadow of a doubt. The Legislature will be Republican by a good majority on joint ballot, and a great delegation of Republican Congressmen will be sent to Washington gressmen will be sent to Washington from New York State. to the fifty sixth session of the House of Repre-sixth session of the House of Repre-sentatives.

"Finally, and with fervor, I wish to say again that the Democratic slander that I am lukewarm to the election of the Republican State ticket demon-strates the utterly demoralized condi-tion of the Democratic campaigners. It is too ridiculous and too untrue for fur-ther comment."

COLLIDED ON THE BAY

RIVER STEAMER J. D. PETERS BADLY DAMAGED.

is Allowed to Sink Gently, and Her Passengers are All Landed Safely.

THE CZARINA LESS INJURED.

LATTER TOWED TO HER DOCK BY

Farragut's Trial Trip Spoiled - Big Catch of Whales-Crops and Weather-Big Printing House

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.] SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 2.-The river steamer J. D. Peters was wrecked in this evening, in a collision with the collier Czarina. The Peters was on her regular route to Stockton, and had on board about two hundred passengers bound for that city and various points in the San Joaquin Valley. The Czarina, which recently arrived from Tacoma, had just completed discharg-ing her cargo of grain at South Vallejo, and was on her way to this city in ballast. No lives were lost, and only one person injured. This was Al P. Rich, an electrician, who sustained several slight bruises.

The accident was caused by the misunderstanding of signals, resulting in a head-on collision. Both vessels were ommanded by experienced officers, the Czarina by G. W. Seaman and the J. D. Peters by Thomas Houldsworth. When it became evident that the two steamers were in such proximity that a collision was inevitable, the engines steamers were in such proximity that a collision was inevitable, the engines were reversed, and it is claimed that they were working at full speed backward when the accident occurred. Still, the force with which they came together was so great that the stem of the Peters tore a big hole in the bow of the Czarina, in which she left a part of her anchor chain and a section of her forward work.

The Peters immediately began making water, and a scene of wild confusion among her passengers ensued. Soon it was found, however, that she would not go to the bottom immediately, and by the efforts of officers and cool-headed men on board, comparative order was restored. The tugs Sea Queen and Alert reached the scene in a short time, and made Several attempts to beach the steamer on Angel Island, but the current was strong and the vessel would not cling to the sloping shore. It slid off into deep water, and began to settle rapidly. Meantime the women and children on board were being transferred to the Capt. Weber or taken to the quarantine station on the island, and then proceeded to Stockton. The Peters was towed in a sinking condition to Sausalito, where she went to the bottom in twelve feet of water.

The Czarina sustained no serious damage, though at first it was thought she, too, would prove a wreck. She proceeded for a short time under her own steam, but decided to accept the services of a tug and was towed to the Howard-street dock.

The Peters is lying in an easy position and it is believed she can be raised, though the operation will be attended with much expense.

The first news of the accident which reached this city was much exaggerated, and great alarm prevailed among the relatives and friends of those aboard the Peters, until the fact of their safety became known. An inquiry will soon be held to fix the blame of the disaster which at prevailed among the relatives and friends of those

A Muskogee (I. T.) dispatch says that, in accordance with the proclamation of Issa-harcher, the principal chief of the Creek Nation, and the agreement entered into by the Dawes Commission and the commission representing the Muskogee or Creek tribe of Indians, the Creek people adopted the treaty by a majority vote of 344. Three more small precincts are to hear from. This will not change the result materially. The ratification by the Creek Indians of the treaty makes in the law, except in so far as its provisions conflict with the Curtis act, recently enacted by Congress.

THE MODERN CRUSOE.

TRUTH OF DE ROUGEMONT'S STRANGE STORY HOTLY ASSAILED.

By a Special Correspondent.

ONDON, Oct. 24 .- For two months the great controversial question in England has been: "Is the man who calls himself Louis de Rouge mont, and who claims to have lived for something like thirty years among the cannibal blacks of Australia, a great traveler or a great imposter?" The Daily Chronicle asked this question early in September and since that time has kept up a continuous fire of denial, criticism and ridicule against the "modern Crusoe." But De Rougemont has not been without warm support ers, and the public has seemed dis posed to listen with interest to his story and to believe it until it should be proved untrue. The world at large has watched this paper war with interest too, for the account of De Rougemont, or at least such part of it as he has related thus far has been repeated in every quarter of the globe and it certainly has fulfilled the claim

But Admiral Markeley, who had had long experience among the South Pacific islands, came forward and said that he had known of this feat being accomplished by na-tives there and that it was by no means impossible.

Then De Rougemont enjoyed a genu ine triumph. He was invited to address the Bristol Congress of the British Association for the Advancement of Science. He read two papers before this dignified body on his geographical and anthropological observations among the Australian natives. More than this he was the lion of the hour Night Dispatches Condensed.

He was invited to fashionable clubs and was invited to fashionable clubs and spoke at dinners in company with the most eminent men of the country. But presently he again fell under suspicion and some parts of his story proved to be impossible of verification. De Rougemont said that he was born in Paris, but it was impossible to find any record of the event or of his family there. Moreover it was found that De Rougemont or his double was born in Neuchatel, Switzerland, was christened there under the name Henri Louis Grin, and under the name Henri Louis Grin, and that he had revisited his native town in August of this year. If was also said that he was well known in Sydney un-der the name of Green, or Grien, that he had lived there for a number of years and had a wife and family still residing there.

Under these circumstances De Rougebimself, admirably. He residing there.

Under these circumstances De Rougemont bore himself, admirably. He submitted to examinations—and—reexaminations—and—reexaminations—and—reexaminations—and—reexaminations—and—resuments of the details. His appearance told in his favor. The extreme bronze of his face and arms lent credence to his account of long exposure to the weather; the deep lines and wrinkles of his face and his wearled, diffident air were those of a man who had endured great suffering and had been long unused to civilization. There were many inconsistencies, however, in his account of his early life, and he finally relapsed into silence, refusing to answer any more questions.

The enemies of De Rougemont acknowledge that there may be a considerable substratum of truth in his stories. It is known that he was at one time engaged in the pearl industry, and it is believed that Peter Jensen, who figures in the narrative as his partner in this enterprise, is still living in New Guinea. It is acknowledged, too, that he may have lived for some years among the blacks, as no record of his doings from about 1875 to 1880 has been found. With important modifications it is likely that his story will be proved to have a basis in fact. At any rate, in splite of the damaging revelations that have been made regarding his credibility, De Rougemont still sticks to his story.

He called at two other houses in the village of Gressy, but, strange to say—that is, if they are to be-believed—his relatives saw nothing of him, although they were aware of his presence in the place. His cousin, Mme. Fannie Grin, lives next door to Mme. Burtaud, yet he did not call of her. Mme. Fannie Grin speaks English fluently, and was a chambermaid in England. Another of his relatives lives across the road, yet he did not see them. All the villagers consider that there was something very mysterious about him. In their own words, "Il y await quelque chose de louche."

words, "If y await quelque chose de louche."

I then toiled along the hilly road where there was a road to Belmont, where the only inn is kept by another of Henri Louis Grin's cousins. I again showed the portrait, and his cousin exclaimed, "He is the living image of his father, and of his brother Francois." His relatives had heard of his passage through Belmont, but he had avoided them there, as he did at Gressy. But he had been seen on his road, and several townspeople knew him by the portrait.

She immediately recognized the portrait of her brother-in-law, but could give me no information about him. She remembered his visit about the end of July or the beginning of August, but she left home almost immediately after his arrival. Mrs. Grin seemed to be distressed about her roving relative, and preferred not to speak out; but her husband visits England frequently, and knows about the controversy going on in the English press.

At the Café Jura and Cafe National the Wide World Magazine portrait of M. Louis de Rougemont was immedi-ately recognized as "le frêre du pas-

"Our readers are aware that thi 'gentleman's servant,' as he was still described, worked his passage home from New Zealand in the steamship Walkato. He arrived in this country Walkato. He arrived in this country about March 1, without many shillings in his pocket, and with absolutely no prospects at all. Apparently he had not a friend in the metropolis. He took a poor lodging at No. 5 Frith street, Soho, where he could not always pay his rent. He lived there in his true name of Henri Louis Grin or Grien, and made his presence known to his Swiss family.

and made his presence known to his Swiss family.

"We ought to say at once that Grin is not only a nervous, excitable, and somewhat absurd person, but that he is, to use the word in no offensive sense, a little crazy. He had in the back of his mind, as it appears, a notion that he could write a book of traveles and marvelous adventures; but that we have the say means his immediate some was by no means his immediate con-cern in life. Among the various occu-pations he had followed in Australia the nearest thing to a settled and respectable livelihood was photography with which he apparently combined the art of drawing portraits in black and white—not, as we gather, that he was an artist, but that he had acquired a mechanical skill in drawing from photographs. He sought in London with-out much success, perhaps without much earnestness, employment in these

"His main hope of fortune was his diving apparatus. This is a thing of which we have heard ad nauseam, and we can save ourselves the trouble of explaining it by referring our readers to the Patent Office; for, with the kindly assistance of Mr. Murphy, the apparatus was provisionally patented on April 2, in the name of Henri Louis Grien, then of 13, Hloomsbury street, London. The address, of course, was that of Murphy. We have reason to believe that the information of William May, the diver, is correct, and that the machine is a worthless and even a dangerous instrument. Curiously enough.

himself implicitly believes in it. One of the many people upon whom he pressed its claims during his restless voyages about the London streets, tells us a curious story, which illustrates an im-portant side of his character not hith-erto publicly disclosed.

But he had been seen on his road, and several townspeople knew him by the portal and the official notice of his birth was laid before me.

By the foregoing it must be transparent to every one that the so-called Henri Louis de Rougemont is Henri Louis Grin of Gressy. All the neighbors recognize him. The only persons who refuse to talk about him are certain distant relatives, who asked meanxously about the pearls and the gold fields. But there is one question I is of M. Grin, Mmc. "TAPS."

With music, with feasting and laughter,
Let us welcome their brown ranks back,
With smiles—tho' tears may come after,
As we note the brave comrades they lack.
For never in legend or story,
Since war did its banners display,
Were soldiers more worthy of glory
Than these that we welcome today.

They left us, boys, fresh and eager, Untried in the camp or the field; They return with the bronze of the tropics The brand of the bullet and steel. Their bearing is that of the veteran, Who faces grim death with calm eye; The torn flags that flutter above them Know well how they fight and they die.

Then let us not stint of our welcome,
Our joy, or our love, or our praise;
Though brief was their task, and soon ended,
No time shall its marvels erase.
And the world that has watched them and wondered,
Has learned the stern lesson anew.
That safe from all harm stands Columbia.

hat safe from all harm stands Columbia, Behind her staunch breastworks of blue

Then let us come down from the mountains And gather from valley and plain, When the sea forts shall thunder the mes

"Our brave boys are with us again."
Let their home-coming feet tread on flowers,
To prove that our love hath no lapse.
When we gave them our hands it was "Tattoo;" Let us give them our hearts now at "Taps.' [Frank H. Gassaway in S. F. Examiner.

The beds were about fifteen feet apart At about 3 o'clock on the following Sunday morning I was awakened by the noise of a pistol, and jumped out of bed, and found that Hancock had knocked both Engelke and Joe in the head with an ax. As the men did not die immediately after having been knocked in the head with the ax, Hancock shot each twice in the head with his pistol, and then struck them again on the head with the ax. Hancock then went through the pockets of both men, but got only $13 from Joe, and a bank book from Engelke. The bank book showed that the doctor had deposited several hundred dollars in some California bank, but I have forgotten what city the bank was in. Hancock also took from the body of the doctor one silver double-cased watch, one gold watch chain, one pocket knife, one small pocket compass in the shape of a watch, and one magnifying glass, and he also took from the pockets of Joe one single-cased silver watch and silver chain. Hancock then told me to help him left the bodies which were not yet dead, into our vagon. Before putting the bodies into the wagon they were tied up in cotton quilts. Hancock then hitched the horses to the wagon, and drove about one-fourth of a mile east of the camr and told me he dumped the bodies out behind a big rock. In going away with the bodies he drove over a little hill and down into a small basin, then up on a rocky cliff. Before going away he told me to burn all of the bloody clothes, bedclothes, hats and shoes.

Hancock I would no longer live with him. He got mad, threatened to kill me, and said I would never live with any one else. Hancock has often told me that if I ever said anything to any one about the murder of Engelke and his driver Joe, he would serve me às he did them. I have not been offered anything to make this statement, as I would have made it long ago had I not been afraid of Hancock. Hancock told me of murdering a man in Mendocino county several years ago, he and the man having trouble over an Indian woman. He ad one time worked for a man anmed Denson in Mendocino county.

Last night she bosvas engaged, and also photos of friends. One new looking suit of clothes and a lot of new laundered white shirts and a large muffler were also taker from the trunk. Everything that conained marks or initials of any kinwere burned with our own wagon. One trunk was also burned. The lot of medicines, instruments and a small medicine case were thrown about thirty feet on the left-hand side of the road opposite where the wagons were burned. By 9 o'clock Hancock had repacked what things he wanted to take along with him and had loaded everything into Engelke's wagon, having burned his own wagon because the bed of it was covered with blood. Hancock hitched up two of Engelke's horses, leaving one of Engelke's horses loose the camp. Hancock also left one of his own horses at the camping place, tying the other to the wagon. One of the horses belonging to Engelke was a race horse, which the doctor said had made a good record on some California track. This horse was a trotter, light-colored sorrel, weighing about nine hundred pounds, and was called Chief. At 2 o'clock in the afternoon we reached a ranch house and stopped over night there. Here Hancock gave away some harness, clothes, clock and veterinary surgeon tools, picture; frames and a brush broom and other articles, all of which belonged to Engelke. He sold a bulldog belonging to Engelke to a farm hand for $1, and also sold one of the doctor's guns to the reached a ranch house just over the Utah line, Hancock traded the race horse for a span of heavy horses, and also sold all of the stolen lewelry there. Arriving in Milford, Utah, Hancock traded the wagon for a larger wagon and sold a beautiful blanket which the doctor had bought for the race horse.

The woman companion as Joe. Last night she positively asserted that she remembered that Engelke sometimes addressed his companion as Pete, and at Riverside it was learned that the man, a Canadian ranch contractor, was known by both names.

Mrs. Gross retained a number of articles which were taken from the persons of the murdered men, and these she has turned over to Mr. Johnson who photographed them, and will us them as evidence against Hancock There will be no difficulty in identify ing some of these articles, as they are such as would be remembered by relatives and friends of Hancock's victims. The accompanying picture shows what the articles are. The handker chief in the center was photographed on a piece of black paper to bring into relief the initial "G" upon it, Above it is shown a small Testament, which was taken from Dr. Engelke's body. It was in good condition when the murder was committed, but since it has been in the woman's possession it has been gnawed by mice. The purse was also taken from Engelke, as were the cuff buttons, also shown in picture. To the right of the handkerchief is shown what appears to be fountain pen. It is a needle case, used for surgeon's needles. The two knives belong to Hancock, and with one of them he cut the man at Fullerton, for which the complaint was issued which resulted in the woman's telling the whole story of the murders.

The work of Justice Johnson and Constable Pendergrast in tracing the missing men was thoroughly done. With only a slight clew to work upon they began their investigations, at first doubting the story of the murder which the woman had told them. They traced them through several towns on a trip across the desert in just such a wagon and with just such horses as those described in the sworn statement of Hancock's former mis-of him if he knew of such a man as the one for whom we were searching, and he said that he had known a Dr. Engelke who had resided in Anaheim about two years ago. He was unable to give us any further information regarding him, and referred us to C. E. Groate, formerly a Constable at Anahelm, now a cement contractor doing business in this city. We immediately went to see Groate. Asking him whether he knew Dr. Engleke, he said, 'Very well,' the latter having served as his deputy while he (Groate) was Constant in Anaheim. After having secured al the information possible from Groate, we left on the first train for Fullerton, arriving there Saturday afternoon. We then proceeded to Anaheim to see F. W. McCullom, a bicycle dealer, to whom we had been referred by Groate. McCullom told us all we desired to know about Engelke. He said the lat ter had left Anaheim about two years ago and was never heard of since. We then returned to Fullerton to again interview the woman. We saw her that night, and she expressed a fear that her husband was secreted near the oil wells with the intention of killing her She stated that she intended to come to Los Angeles in a day or two, both from fear of her husband, and in order to have a wound which her boy had eccived attended to. I informed here that before she left I desired a sworn statement of the particulars of the murder. This she consented to give. For the purpose of making this statement we met the woman Sunday night in my office, and there, in the presence of Constable Prendergast, myself and the woman's seven-year-old boy, my stenographer took her statement, which of our visit to Los Angeles was to find out all we possibly could of such a man. By consulting the city directory, we found that there were two families of that name residing in this city.

We visited both families that night and found that we were on a false trail. It was not the woman's fault, however, that this mistake had been nade, for she was acting in seemingly good faith throughout. We also visited a number of livery stables, hoping to find some trace of some such man, but failed. We had almost given up hope, when we happened to meet Mr. Fred now living in Los Angeles. We inquired

F. Engelke replied that he had a son in California named George, a veterinary surgeon. After making further investigation. I wired him, asking him when he had last heard of his son, and that his son was probably murdered last April, 1897. He immediately wired me that he last heard of him the first part of April, 1897. On Tuesday morning, we had a full description of Hancock printed and mailed throughout Southern California, asking for his arrest for the assault committed on the employé of the Santa Fé oil wells. for the arrest of the man, we proceeded to investigate that portion of They were married that night, and are the story relating to the companion of Engelke. In order to do this it was necessary to further trace Engelke's movements. For this purpose. I went to Riverside this morning. Arriving there, I learned that for a good while Engelke drove the stage between Moreno and Riverside and later began doing veterinary work under a Dr. Elliott, and later with Dr. Button, who is now a resident of Los Angeles. I found that Engelke was well-known in Southern California. From Mr. Finley of the firm of Finley & Knight of Riverside, I learned that Engelke, in company with a manamed Peter Edmiston, had rigged un an outfit of a light spring wagon and three horses and left Riverside som time ago, for the purpose of mining on the desert. The description of outfit given by the woman was fully corroborated by those familiar with it Riverside. Edmiston and his Hancock's picture. He was also able Star Laundry of Ontario, the to supply us with additional information as to his personal description, the woman having given us the pre vious description, which we supplied to the officers throughout Southern California. We had learned that Hancock was an ex-convict, having been sent up from San Diego county for burglary. Through Hancock having purchased a ticket at Fullerton, we traced him to Orange, and learned from the conductor on the train that a man of such a description had been carried on his train to San Bernardino. While coming from Riverside tonight I was informed by the conductor that he had seen a man answering Hancock's description around the San Bernardino depot for a day or two. Immediately on my arrival in Los Angeles this evening, I telephoned to Constable Pendergrast in Fullerton, and he informed me that only a short time before he had received a telegram from San Bernardino that a man answering Hancock's description had been arrested there, and he would leave for that point to get the man tomorrow morning. "Since my absence from Fullerton, letter has been received there addressed to me from Engelke's parents at Ogden. While conversing with Constable Pendergrast tonight over the 'phone he informed me that the letter said that his son, George Engelke, had written them about April, 1897, that he was going mining on the desert with a Canadian.

GOING FOR HIS MAN. Constable Pendergrast will leave Fullerton for San. Bernardino this morn-Ing, armed with the warrants for the arrest of Hancock on the charges of assaulting the oil-well worker with a deadly weapon and for threatening the life of his former mistress. He will be taken to Fullerton immediately and arraigned on these charges. They will arraigned on these charges. They will be sufficient to hold him until the Ne vada officers can be acquainted with the murder case and take such steps as they desire. Mn Johnson last night wrote a long etter to the Governor of Nevada, inclosing a copy of the sworn statement, lescribing the murder. He also in formed him as to the disappearance of the two men from Riverside and of his ossession of a number of articles which had belonged to them, and which the relatives of the murdered men could certainly identify. Mr. Johnson will return to Fullerton this morning to assist in the prosecution of Hancock on these charges and upon the receipt of an answer from the Nevada officers Hancock will be formally charged with murder, and, it is expected, will be taken to Nevada for rial.

THE WOMAN IN THE CASE. The woman who makes such a serious charge against Hancock is a native of New York, and is 27 years of age. Her first husband was one Keen. She secured a divorce from him at Sacramento, about four years ago, and soon afterward Hancock began paying her attention. Her relations with him are told of in her sworn statement. When when the Thirteenth Regiment left Fort Porter for the South at the beginning of the war, it went by a special train. Among other boys an men gomore than one instance when Hancock was abusing her. On the day before she made her first statement as to the murder he had interfered in her behalf, and Hancock slashed him across the hand with one of the two knives shown in the picture. She told all she knew of the murder on Sunday night, and the following morning came to Los Angeles. Gross followed, or came with her, it is not known which. Monday afternoon they secured a marriage license. The records of the County Clerk's office show that a license was issued to George D. Gross, a native of East India, aged 37, and Winifred Keen, a native of New York, aged 27. she and Hancock went to live near Keen, a native of New York, aged 27.

now living at No. 115 East Third street. HANCOCK'S BAD RECORD. John Hancock, who is charged with the double murder, is by no means unknown to the peace officers of the various counties of Southern California. He is a native of Texas and is 28 years of age. At the age of 20 he was convicted of burglary in San Diego county and sent to the penitentiary. After serving out his term he returned to his former haunts. Since then he has been in jail in Riverside and at other places, both for theft and disturbing the peace His mother resides at Rainbow. She has married again since she came to California. Hancock has three brothers, who reside respectively in Newport Beach, Santa Ana and Perris.

A REPUBLICAN NOMINATIONS.

The Republican county ticket, as THE TIMES pointed out on the day after it was placed in nomination, is a strong, well-balanced, and unexceptionable ticket. It is composed of men well qualified in every respect to discharge the duties and bear the responsibilities of the various offices to which they have been nominated. The Republican County Convention was a body of representative men. They went ihto the convention pledged to oppose boss-rule and all the petty machinations of professional politicians-for-revenue-only. Their pledges were carried out in an admirable manner, and they gave to the voters of Los Angeles county a ticket, (with but a single exception,) which has never been excelled as regards the character, the ability, the uprightness, and the general fitness of

The nominees for county offices, for Senatorial and Assembly districts, for Supervisors and for township offices, are all worthy of the votes of all true Republicans, and should receive the full vote of their party on Tuesday next THE TIMES believes and trusts that they will receive this vote, and that they will be elected.

It is with sincere regret that feel impelled to make one exception in referring to the general excellence of the Republican nominations. The exposé of Justice D. C. Morrison's record, which has been published, arly convicts him of unfitness fo reëlection to the office of City Justice. He stands convicted by his own official record of misconduct, of bad judgment, and of undue partiality to voters of the city, without respect to party, will do well to vote for Charles O. Morgan, fusion candidate for City Justice, in preference to voting for D. C. Morrison. Mr. Morgan is a well-known and honorable citizen. well qualified for the office, and his election would be preferable by far to the reëlection of Justice Morrison. When a question of personal fitness arises in regard to a candidate for a local office, the preference should always be given, and will be given by conscientious voters, to the best man for the position. Applying this test, it is obvious that D. C. Morrison should be defeated for the office of

City Justice, and that Charles O. Morgan should be elected in his stead. MEREDITH FOR THE ASSEMBLY

The Republican candidate for the Assembly in the Seventy-third Dig- ers to combine and bring suit against trict, J. M. Henry Clews, in his financial review for the week ending October 29, speaking of the recent decision of the United States Supreme Court in the Joint Traffic Association case, says: "Since the transmissouri case was the railroads have formed their alliances in a way that is to all intents and purposes an evasion of the decision, while at the same tim not a legal violation of it. The dewas a warning to them to pre pare and be ready for a similar one to be rendered in the Joint Traffic Association case. All the railroads that have been connected with the now pronounced illegal Traffic Associations, have learned during their of the agreement which has kept har mony among them, so that by com-mon consent they will disband their organizations, but will keep together just the same, and being in honor bound will live up to the principles which originally brought them together. This doubtless is understood be the action that will be taken by the various railroad managers, and is so understood by Wall street, hence the effect of the decision in financial

"There is one method of meeting the United States Supreme Court de-cision by the railroad managers. They can form social clubs at the have casual meetings and arrange a mutual understanding as gentlemen do in matters connected with social life, and thereby be bound by word of mouth, which gentlemen recognize the same as though in legal docume form. There is no doubt that railroad managers are much perplexed by the harsh decision of the Suprem are now so busy that the effect of the decision will not hurt them now; but it certainly will do so when busis slackens off unless some method is adopted to hold them together through a bond of honor or other-wise, as without it the roads will strike out, as in times gone by, for each other's customers. This is sure each other's customers. This is sure to occur with enterprising, competitive roads in dull times, but there is no danger of this now while all the roads have as much business as they-can handle."

This frank declaration, by one who is in a position to speak "by the card," as it were, is significant. The announcement that the railroads will evade the law, by forming social clubs at which verbal agreements will be entered into, having all the binding force of written contracts, is interest ing. This prospective development of railroad exploitation will bear watching. It may be that the lawmaking and law-enforcing branches of the government can find some neans of preventing this threatened violation of the law, if the plan suggested by Mr. Clews should be put

Let every Republican and ev ery man who believes in the policy of protection for California products rally to the polls for Russell J Waters, on election day.

A statement has been published and circulated by irresponsible parties no doubt at the instigation and with the connivance of the railroad gans that is trying to save the politica neck of George L. Arnoldeffect that the Times-Mirror Company has evaded the payment of its just proportion of taxes, and that its total tax payments amount to only about $300 annually. In order to refute this malicious statement, it is only necessary to state that THE TIMES pays a larger amount in taxes on its plant than any other newspaper in the State of California, and that the taxes on its property the current year amount to exactly $1460.94. This statement can be veri fied by any person who desires to take the trouble to refer to the pub lic records.

The report that the customs re ceipts for October in Santiago wer over $9000 greater this year than last despite greatly reduced tariff rates, is an indication of wha American business methods are likely to effect in other newly-acquired posessions of the United States, and also probably indicates that a large sum, of the amount collected there, has gone into the pockets of Spanish of ficials.

The County Hospital has never been in better condition than during Mr. Field's term of office. and he has labored faithfully office. and he has labored faithfully and efficiently to increase its facilities and to add to its accommodations. That this is true is evidenced by a statement which has been signed by a number of the leading physicians and surgeons of the city, who have had frequent occasion to visit the hospital and to become thoroughly familiar with its condition, and with the manner in which the inmates are cared for. The statement is signed by Democrats, as well as Republicans, notable among the former being Dr. J. J. Choate, than whom no Democrat in this city carries more weight among the intelligent voters of his party. It is as follows:

"LOS ANGELES, Oct, 31, 1898.

"We, the undersigned, physicians and surgeons of Los Angeles county, having in the past four years become thoroughly familiar with the management of the Los Angeles County Hospital, and the treatment of the sick poor therein, most heartily regret the recent efforts (for political reasons only) that have been made to deprecate the manner in which the affairs of this institution have been conducted. From frequent personal observation and and efficiently to increase its facili stitution have been conducted. From frequent personal observation and visitation, we know the facilities for the care of patients, and inmates have been steadily enlarged and increased until they are now as good, if not better, than in any similar institution on the coast

The colored Republican rally, which is to be held tonight at Hazard's Pavilion, under the auspices of the Southern California members of the State Council of Afro-American League, and local leagues, promises to be one of the most notable colored meetings that has been held. The Concord Band and members of the Afro-American League will assemble at No. 318½ South Main street at 7 o'clock, and will march to the Pavilion. The band will render selections during the evening. When Barlow arrived he found the place dark and empty, the audience having gone home. Such a complete fizzle in the strongest Democratic Ward of the city does not bespeak much enthusiasm. An interesting feature of tonight's meeting at S.I.M.B.I. Hall, No. 760 Buena Vista street, will be an address by H. C. Goodman, one of the Rough Riders. He will speak of the campaign before Santiago, and will exhibit many interesting trophies captured from the Spanlards.

Congressman Barlow, in some of his recent addresses, has resorted to a contemptible accusation in reply to Edwin A. Meserve's telling arraignment of his public record. Barlow has insinuated that Mr. Meserve does not pay his debts. Such a charge needs no refutation in this city, where Mr. Meserve's business standing is well known.

THE SIXTH AMENDMENT. H. C. DILLON, Los Angeles: This amendment should be adopted. The opposition of the Los Angeles Teachers' Association is not well founded. It is a mistake to suppose that its adoption will injure the High School. It is a mistake to suppose that its adoption will injure the High School. The fact is, it is in the interest of higher education at lower cost. It is the existing, and not-the proposed law, which discriminates against the High School. The public school system embraces high schools, but fails to provide for their support. Any community may have one, but its local taxpayers must pay the expense of it. The system provides normal schools at public expense for a single class, namely, 'teachers, and their vocation is as much a profession as law, or medicine or the ministry.

By the same system, our State university gives a complete education in ancient and modern languages, and in all the sciences; nevertheless, the State has hitherfo neglected and refused to pay for preparatory schools in which our children shall be fitted to enter the university. It is this inconsistency which this amendment is intended to remedy. It is intended that the grammar schools shall take the place of the high school in every study except Latin and Greek. The amendment is so framed that the grammar school may then teach manual training and fit its graduates to take the university course in every branch of learning that does not require Latin and Greek.

The amendment is in harmony with those who do not believe those languages should be taught in the public schools and with those who recognize the urgent and growing demand for a higher education in the liberal arts and sciences to fit our young men, especially, for the ever-increasing demands of trade and commerce, in the production and distribution of wealth and in the science of war, as well as and in the science of war, as well as in the arts of peace. Los Angeles and other big cities find it easy to maintain one High School, but the country districts find it a great burden, so great, that some have fallen asleep, and others, notably San Bernardino, are contemplating its discontinued.

The reasons urged against the amendment seem to be sentimental rather than practical. It is of no consequence whether this preparatory school to the university shall be called a high school or a grammar shool, so long as it provides the education which we want, and that is what this amendment provides for. It is to be amendment provides for. It is to be hoped the city voters will see before election that the teachers are wrong this time. Certainly the country voters should be unanimous in its favor.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]
LONDON, Nov. 2.—[By Atlantic Cable.] The examination of Mr. Hooley in bankruptcy proceedings was resumed today and attracted much attention. Hooley continued to testify to the amounts, large and small, paid to the trustees and directors in connection with his promotion schemes. He created a sensation by saying that he paid Sir William Marriott £1000 for introducing him to the Carlton Club, and asserting later that he paid £10.000 to the Marquis of Abergavenny, a prominent Conservative, for party funds. The witness did not know whether the money reached the party funds.

Subsequently Hooley explained that he paid the Marquis of Abergavenny £5000 first and then paid him a second £5000, because he was told that he had promised £10,000.

Crawford Sues Chronis for Legal Services not Performed. Out of the frying-pan into the fire is the sort of experience James Chronis, Spring-street fruit-dealer, is having at the hands of the minions of the law. sooner gets acquitted of one charge than another is brought against him. Where this perpetual haling of him into court is going to end, Chronis would like to know, as he finds the business of hiring lawyers to defend himself to be quite expensive. -The latest legal difficulty in which Chronis is the unwilling defendant, is a civil suit instituted against him by Hugh J. Crawford, Esq., a well-known

d civil suit instituted against him by Hugh J. Crawford, Esq., a well-known police-court practitioner, for attorneys' fees alleged to be due him for his willingness to defend Chronis in a criminal action.

Chronis was arrested some weeks ago for violating the sidewalk ordinance by pilling boxes of fruit upon the pavement in front of his place of business. Chronis did not deny that he was guilty of the act charged, but he bbjected to having the ordinance enforced against him when other fruit-dealers were allowed to violate the ordinance with impunity. He therefore resolved to fight the case in order to have the ordinance put to the test. He hired Attorney Crawford did so successfully that the court dismissed the case without even submitting it to the jury. The collapse of the prosecution was due to the fact that the arresting officer was not positive whether it was the defendant or one of his brothers whom he caught in the act of blockading the sidewalk. Chronis promptly settled with his attorney for getting him out of his scrape so easily, but almost immediately he was arrested again on complaint of A. K. Moropulus. a fellow-Greek with whom he had long been at enmity, on the charge of disturbing the peace. When Chronis was taken before the court on this charge, Crawford promptly volunteered his services as counsel again. He says Chronis accepted the offer, and Crawford proceeded to map out a line of defense that would add new laurels to his reputation as an astute Police Court barrister, and bring his client off trumphantly, as in the former case of the People vs. Chronis.

But when the case came to trial before Justice Morrison, Tueslay afternoon, Chronis, much to Crawford's surprise, repudiated him and informed the court that he had retained Bernard Mills, Esq., as his counsel. This hurt Mr. Crawford's feelings very much, and he thinks it will take a salve in the shape of a doucer of at least $25 to heal the wound.

Attorney Mills succeeded in securing the acquittal of Crawford's client, but Crawford insists Increase in Postoffice Business. The regular monthly report of Post-naster Matthews for October shows a considerable increase in the business of the postoffice department as com-pared with the corresponding month of last year. The total receipts for the pared with the corresponding month of last year. The total receipts for the month this year amount to $17,923.74, while last year they amounted to $17,201.85. This gives an increase for the month in favor of this year of $720.89, or 4.19 per cent. A comparison of the other months shows a steady gain in favor of this year's business.

A Los Angeles business man who visited San Francisco the other day tells this story on himself: "He was a ragged little newsboy, dirty, grimy, noisy, tough he rushed up to me and said meekly, "Wantapapersur? Oh, come now, buyaparer; only a nickel. Oh soon young said per; only a nickel. Oh, go on, youse got a nickel. Yer can read all about Mike Kinley at Omehaw. Come off and buy a paper.' I pulled out four bits and handed it to the kid, who bit it and then named it to the kid, who bit it and then said, it ain't got no change, but I'll get it.' No you don't, said I, 'you'll never come back, with the change.' 'Hones' Injun'; here, you hold my papers till I get the change,' and putting the papers in my hands he rushed into a cigar store for change. There was a side door to the cigar store, and, change being scarce, the boy is still hunting for a place to get the boy is still hunting for a place to get his four bits changed." PERKINS MEETING

ENTHUSIASTIC GATHERING AT HAZARD'S PAVILION.

The Issues of the Campaign Forcibly cussed - Something About That Railroad Question.

TARIFF NOT A DEAD ISSUE.

BTAND BY M'KINLEY AND THE AD-MINISTRATION.

sell J. Waters Reports Encourag ingly of the Situation Throughout the Congressional

It was an enthusiastic throng that rathered last night at Hazard's Pa-vilion to hear the issues of the campaign presented by Senator George C Perkins and R. J. Waters, candidate for Congress from this district. The crowd packed every corner of the great building, and many were unable to find seats. There were many ladies present and altogether the audience was an ex ceptional one, composed of thoughtful people, who had gathered to hear political questions intelligently discussed.

There was a disposition to cheer long and frequently. Whenever telling points were scored by the speakers in favor of Republican doctrines, the audience was unstinting in its applause. The mention of President McKinley and the present administration never failed to meet with a hearty response on th part of the listeners.

The meeting was held under the aus pices of the Business' Men's Republican Club and the Congressional Sound-Money League. The Americus Club of Pasadena, which took part in the parade, was present at the opening of the meeting and occupied seats on the platmeeting and occupied seats on the plat-form, but left early as the members have been tired out by the arduous campaign of the last few weeks, and needed rest. Judge J. W. McKinley called the meeting to order and introduced as president of the evening, George H.

Stewart, who he said had rendered heroic services to the Republican party during the last campaign, and who is now working to make Los Angeles county again the banner Republican county of the State. The Crown City Quartette (colored,) then sang several campaign songs, receiving hearty enampaign songs, receiving hearty en-

Three cheers for R. J. Waters, the Three cheers for K. J. Waters, the next Congressman from this district, were proposed by Mr. Stewart, and were given with such a will that the great building fairly shock with the reverberations. Men threw up their hats and women added their voices to the hurrahs for the popular candidate. Again the crowd cheered rectiferably who Senator Perkins's idate. Again the crowd cheered ferously, when Senator Perkins's e was proposed, and a third time shouted their approval for the

Mr. Stewart then presented Mr. Waters to the audience as the gentleman the people of Los Angeles believe is the right person to represent this district in Congress. He said: "Mr. Waters's vocal cords are somewhat waters's vocal cords are somewhat disarranged, owing to his arduous campaign work of the past few weeks, and he may not be able to speak to you long, but 'he's all right,' and we propose to elect him as our representative to Congress next Tuesday."

'Mr. Waters took the floor and began speaking, although he could hardly articulate, owing to his hoarseness. He stated that he had just finished a campaign through the northern part of the district and was able tor report an encouraging condition of affairs all along the line. What he had seen made him sanguine of success for the Republican ticket at the coming election. He believed every candidate on the ticket would be elected, from Governor down. In closing, Mr. Waters urged the voters to indorse at the polls the course of President McKinley and the present administration for its conduct of the recent war and its course relative to the extension of territory. Mr. Waters sat down amid the loud applause that greeted his closing remark.

Senator George C. Perkins was then presented to the audience, and this was a signal for enthusiastic cheering. He opened his address by saying that the grand demonstration made during the evening showed that the people of Los Angeles were thinking, and that when people began to think it was a sure sign of a Republican victory. He issues of the presented and drove them home with great force. He said that the Democrats and Populists in California were making campaign capital by trying to drag in a rallroad issue and claim thes.

Again. The Democrats and Populishave tried to say that the tariff issign a dead issue, but people might well try to teach religion without taling about sin as to talk about Repu g about sin as to talk about Repub-canism without a tariff issue. The peaker finally ured the people to ote a vote of confidence in President (cKinley and the administration by thering to the Republican ticket at a coming election. AMERICAN DOCTRINE.

ator, Perkins on the Live Issue of the Campaign. les, gentlemen and fellow-citizen.

Los Angeles: I esteem it a great leasure to be permitted to address the lizens of this fair and beautiful city. As I contemplate the vast possibilise of this, the metropolis of Southern alifornia. I am constrained to believe that you must have a vital in-lines of transcontinental railroads is about to be augmented by the connterprise which you have long cher shed, and to which you are justly en-itled. In addition to this vast undertaking you may confidently rely upon Congress assisting, by appropriation, in aid of the inner-harbor at Wilmington, upon which graving, dock and way and other appliances for building and repairing ships will rise; with their accompanying machine, shows where companying machine shops; where ship and car will be brought together to properly handle the increased trafthe sea will certainly bring to your borts and to your neighboring city of San Diego, when the Nicayragua Canal is completed, and which will surely be commenced under the Mc-surely be commenced under the Mc-Kinley administration.

The coming election, following hard upon the heels of war, while the terms of peace are unsettled and in process of negotiation, is of vital importance, not only to the people of this State, but it rises to the dignity of national importance. Aside from the election of a Governor, two justices of the Su-preme Court and other State officers, we are to elect seven members of preme Court and other State officers, we are to elect seven members of Congress, and the members of our State Legislature, who, in turn, will elect a United States Senator to represent this State for the ensuing six years—and I ask you, gentlemen, with the construction of the Nicaragua Canal, the Hawaiian cable, the read-uistment of the commerce of the Pacific—lif it is not important to see to it that our next Senator is one who will be in accord with the administration, which will have so much to do with determining these great questions?

tion, which will have so much to do with determining these great questions?

The Republican party comes with confidence before the people; and submits its record of the past as a guarantee of its future good faith. Every promise made, every assurance given to the people in its national platform has been sacredly kept and carried out in spirit as well as in letter. Our Democratic friends complain that we are always talking about our record. Why should we not talk about our record when it will bear the searching light of investigation and criticism? They do not discuss or refer to their own record, and I don't blame them for not doing so.

In speaking of the Democratic, Populist, Silver Republican parties. I speak of them as different political parties, and, of the members, as I would of the stockholders in the People's Savings Bank of San Francisco. They are honorable, high-minded gentlemen, but the corporation in which they are stockholders swindled every man, woman and child who had any business dealings with it—And so it is with many Democrats. As individuals they are honorable, high-minded gentlemen, but I am afraid of their corporation—it needs some kind of overhauling. They have just solemnized a triple marriage at Sacramento. corporation—it needs some kind of overhauling. They have just solemnized a triple marriage at Sacramento, and have spawned a new political party—a sort of political rag baby—but it cannot save them from suspicion. I honor a man or a woman the order of the same from the state of the same from the picion. I honor a man or a woman who stands up and fights bravely for a well-defined principle, although I may differ with their views. It was so with the good, old-fashloned Democrats. I respected them for the hon-est zeal with which they advocated est zeal with which they advocated State rights, free trade and many other public policies in which I held other public policies in which I held diametrically opposite views. I also respected the Populists for their proposed socialistic administration of public affairs and believed then, and believe now, that they were honest at that time in advocating the government ownership of railroads and the general paternal form of, government. Even our Silver Republican friends I believed honest in their advocacy of believed honest in their advocacy of the free coinage of silver. But when all the followers of all of these "isms" have combined and centered upon on andidate, when they come with their incongruous and contradic man who shall represent them all, then I begin to believe that their vaunted principles have been aban-doned in a mad and undignified chase for public office and emoluments. THE THREE-TAILED PARTY. When a man runs on three separate platforms, made by three political par-ties differing so widely in their principles that they refuse to become and ciples that they refuse to become and cannot become one party, a suspicion is at once raised that that man wants office very badly, or that he enjoys riding three odd-sized horses at once, with each going in a different direc-tion. The French statesman, Gam-

platforms and center upon one with each going in a different direction. The French statesman, Gambetta, once said of an opponent that he was not to be trusted by either of two political parties, because he had a leg in each camp; and I think Gambetta was right. Now'let us consider these platforms.

The Democratic platform demands the free and unlimited coinage of silver at 16 to 1. It commends the Democrats in Congress for favoring "all measures" for the support of our arms in the war with Spain, and also commends the same Democrats in Congress for opposing the War Revenue Bill, without which our arms could not have been supported at all. They appear to favor the war, but are against its prosecution.

They appear to favor the war, but are against its prosecution.

Then the platform reiterates the position of the party on the railroad issue. It has been reiterating that for many years. It has elected Governors, Legislatures and Railroad Commissioners by that reiteration, and when in power has forgotten its reiteration, and has not reiterated any more until it wanted office again.

has forgotten its reiteration, and has not reiterated any more until it wanted office again.

That platform wants the poli tax abolished and is silent about other taxes. The Democratic platform commends the condition of State affairs under Gov. Budd, and lauds him for the high condition of things, while the Populist platform begins by saying there is urgent necessity of reform in the State government, which is pretty rough on the Governor. The Populist platform begins by saying there is urgent necessity of reform in the State government, which is pretty rough on the Governor. The Populist platform also calls for the initiative and the referendum, for direct legislation by the people, for the abolishing of representative government, for the denying of the right of review by the courts or of veto by the Governor. It demands the immediate issue of irredeemable paper currency by the government and the free coinage of silver. Why in the name of reason should we coin silver or gold, if we are to immediately issue irredeemable paper currency? Running a printing press is cheaper than running the mint. The Populist platform further demands that the government bid in the Central Pacific road and operate the same for the benefit of the people. The Democratic platform demands that it be held by the government as a public highway, on which the Democratic candidate for Governor says that every man shall have the right to run his own locomotive and cars. All of us who keep our own cars and locomotives can then hitch up and take a spin on the rail. But the Populist want the government to run the cars. As the Democratic Populist candidate for Governor indorses both platforms, he indorses these two opposite plans. Believing him an honest man, it is not clear to me how he can believe in both propositions.

The Populist platform wants the war with Spain prosecuted with money, government operation of ds, government ownership of all utilities, for the abolition of entative government, for the ex-on from taxation of personal ty, for immediate reform of the government (which the Demo-platform says Gov. Budd has reormed to perfection,) one sees the train it must be upon a candidate to ave one less on this platform and ne on the Democratic platform which

se. Silver Republican platform com-The Silver Republican platform commends the administration of President McKinley, and the Democratic-Populist candidate for Governor has indorsed it, while he has also indorsed the condemnation of the President by the Populist and Democratic platforms. Talk about Jefferson, why, if he were alive today he would be a member of the Republican party and would say as the savior of mankind said to the money changers who had established themselves in the Temple of the Lord: "They preach the principles of Jefferson to uphold and perpetuate modern agrarianism." Did you ever know of had been a washed-out Republican that had been a washed-out Republican who was not always boasting that he had once been a Republican? Like an old toper, he had seen betfer days and was sorry old friends had drifted away from him.

RAILROAD ISSUES.

Now, what are the real issues before the people in this political campaign? Certainly not the railroad question. The question of freight and fares is being settled, not by Democrats, Populists or Board of Railroad Commissioners but by Boardof Raliroad Commissioners but by competition. California is not opposed to raliroads as raliroads. Its attitude toward them is hostile only when they are oppressive or when they step aside from their legitimate business to influence legislation or to secure the defeat or success of political candidates. In verification of that statement, I have but to call attention to the railroad recently constructed down the great Sar Joaquin Valley, the stock of which was subscribed and paid for by the mer-chants—of San Francisco, They enants of San Francisco. They did so for the purpose of bringing the products of that fruitful valley to that great de pot of distribution, and to relieve i from the monopoly of one line of rail-road.

road. The Republican party in Congress as The Republican party in Congress assisted materially in bringing about freight competition in this State. They appropriated large sums of money for the deepening of the Sacramento, Feather and San Joaquin rivers; for the improvement of harbors and ports on the coast. Last Congress appropriated alone $3,000,000 to put in perfect condition the harbor of San Pedro, one of the great ports of Southern California.

These—nature's great highways—rivers, oceans and harbors, are free for all mankind, whether it be the owner of the magnificent steamships or the proprietor of a flat bottomed boat oper or the magnineent steamships or the proprietor of a flat bottomed boat oper-ated by man or boy. Such competition is doing more for the farmer and for the producers of our State than all the railroad com-missions and legislatures have done for the past generation or can do for

THE PACIFIC RAILROAD DEBT. The collection of the amount due the covernment from the Central Pacific Railroad Company is not an issue in this campaign. That question has been settled. When President McKinley assumed the duties of his high office he sumed the duties of his high office he discovered that his predecessor had arranged for a compromise of the Union Pacific indebtedness; that he had accepted a guarantee of $45,000,000 for a debt of about $66,000,000 due the government. debt of about $66,000,000 due the government, or but little more than 60 cents on the dollar. President McKinley believed a larger sum could be realized and he directed notice to be served upon the corporation that the government must have a positive guarantee of a larger sum or he would proceed to foreclose the lien upon the road and offer it for sale to the highest bidand offer it for sale to the highest bid-der. The company came to his terms and the government received every doi-lar, principal and interest, amounting of over $66,000,000, which was put into the treasury of the United States. Re-ferring to the Central Pacific, only a part of the amount owing the government from that company is now due and payable. Various plans have been presented to Congress for the settlement of the debt, but none were acceptable. In the closing days of Congress, however, the committee on Pacific Railroads (of which Democratic Senators Morgan of Alabama, Faulkner of West Virgina, Murphyof New York and Harris of Kansas were members,) directed Senator Morgan to propose an amendment to the Deficiency Appropriation Bill. authorizing and empowering the Attorney-General, Secretary of the Interior and the Secretary of the Treasury, by and with the approval of the President, to negotiate the settlement of the indebtedness due the government from the Central Pacific. The plan contemplates the payment of the full amount due, including principal and inverset; payments to be made in twenty semi-annual payments; deferred payments to bear 3 per cent_per annum; and in event of the company defaulting in a single payment, the full amount to become immediately due and payable, and the government, through its Department of Justice, could proceed against the delinquent corporation. Senator Morgan, who had always opposed every adjustment of this debt, stated that he considered this a satisfactory and final adjudication—of this matter, which had agitated the public mind for many years—and he was very glad that it would be taken out of the domain of politics; he also stated that he considered the settlement the more satisfactory, as the government would, by this plan, receive its full amount, principal and interest, and that the effect of this arrangement is not to extend the time of paying the debt, inasmuch as the company had only defaulted in a part of the amount, the balance not falling due until 1899. The rules of the Senate are such that no amendment to a general appropriation bill, which involves new legislation, can be considered in the Senators who were either present or paired. I consulted with my colleagues in relation to the matter, and we personally interviewed members of the Pacific Railroad Commit ment from that company is now due and payable. Various plans have been presented to Congress for the settle ment of the debt, but none were ac-

The platform vlews with alarm the number of unemployed people. A good way to stop that would be for the

How, then, can our friends in this State, who are conducting the Democratic, Populist and Silver Republican campaign, consistently present such a false issue and expect the people to believe in their sincerity?

THE TARTER When President McKinley assume When President McKinley assumed the duties of his high office he found, upon a review of the business history of the country, that the four preceding years had been a period of general depression throughout the land, although there had been no drought, no epidemic of disease, no tornado or earthquake, which might have produced these results. Yet the facts remained, that men were idle, that rolling mills, machine shops, factories, coal and iron mines were closed down, the arm of industry was paralyzed and employés were marching in squads and armies from one State to another in search of employment and knocking at the halls of Congress for governmental relief. Republicans claimed that all of this misery and iddeness was caused by national legislations. misery and idleness was caused by na-tional legislation, which had thrown our ports and warehouses open to the products of other lands, bringing our people in competition with the cheap labor of Europe and the servile peon of Asia. President McKinley therefore believed it his patriotic duty not to wait until Congress should convene, eight months later, but he immediately called that body together in special session, and by message recommended them to so revise our present tariff laws as to protect American industries and attinulate manufacturing, so that work as to protect American industries and stimulate manufacturing, so that work might be 'given to the unemployed. Congress immediately commenced its labors and not three months passed before a general revival of business ensued, confidence was restored throughout the land and an air of general prosperity prevailed. I will not weary you by reciting, as I could, the number of factories, machine shops and rolling mills that commenced to operate in New England, Pennsylvania, Ohlo, Alabama and other States, in immediate response to this magic touch. I will content myself with the simple statement that the wheels of industry began to hum; the very atmosphere seemed changed, and the people looked forward with hope and confidence in the future.

EFFECT OF THE DINGLEY BILL. It may not be improper, however, to call your attention especially to son of the many advantages which Cali fornia has been the recipient of by this new revenue law, known as "the Ding-ley Bill." First, we are the second ey Bilk." First, we are the second vool-growing State in the Union, and you will not misunderstand the im-portance of the Dingley tariff when I say the price of wool was immediately doubled.

California produced in the year 1897 35 000,000 pounds of wool; the increase of price by reason of the Dingley Bill was about 8½ cents per pound, or sa $3.000,000 more in the pocket of th wool-grower, who our Demo-friends insisted should compete friends insisted should compete with the comparatively free wool from Aus-tralia. Mexico, China and other foreign wools. Sheep, cattle and other five stock has advanced fully 50 per cent., but the consumer does not complain, as he is getting better meat, and a better

The citrus fruits of our country, formerly suffering under great depression were protected by the advance of the tariff schedule of more than double that prevailing under the "Wilson Bill," thereby giving the orange, lemon and citrus-fruit growers in Southern California an opportunity to compete with the product of their Toreign rivals, which was transported by foreign ships, manned by foreign seamen, who were fed with supplies bought in foreign ports. Raisins, Zante currants, prunes, wines, walnuts, almonds, Olive oil, hops and chicory, and many other articles which sustain our farmers, vine vardists and horticulturists, were likewise protected by an increased and just duty, ranging from 30 to 100 per cent, thereby giving them an advantage over foreign compelitors. The citrus fruits of our country, for foreign competitors.

California shipped during the past vear to Eastern States about fifteen thousand carloads of oranges and lemons, or say 5,000,000 boxes, the duty under the Wilson and Gormon Bill was about 15 cents per box; under the Dingley Bill it is 65 cents per box, or an increase of 50 cents per box, or say $2.500,000 saved to the citrus-growers of California, as only 500 carloads of oranges have been imported into the United States during the past year, against over two thousand cars the previous year.

The United States pay to foreign countries about $100,000,000 annually for sugar. The McKinley bill gave a bounty of 2 cents per pound for four-teen years to stimulate the growing of sugar cane and sugar beets in this country.

bounty of 2 cents per pound for fourteen years to stimulate the growing of sugar cane and sugar beets in this country.

As soon as our Democratic friends came into power they promptly passed the "Wilson-Gorman" tariff act, which repealed the bounty law. If the "Dingley Bill" under the present Republican Congress had not been enacted, the sugar industry in the United States would have been crushed out. This bill, instead of a bounty, affords the beet-sugar grower protection of about 1% cents per pound on refined sugar that comes from Germany and other countries that pay an export bounty upon sugar sent from their country into the United States.

California produced in 1888 only 1910 tons of beet sugar; in 1897, 35,280 tons, and in addition to the factories we have already, a new factory is in process of construction near Salinas City of, 4000 tons of beets capacity per day.
That means a distribution of about $26,000 per day (for a yearly campaign of five to six months) in payment of beets, fuel, lime, package, transportation and labor. There are also other beet factories building at Port Costa, Anahelm and Oxnard, and the factories in Chino, Alvarado and Watsonville are enlarging their capacity. This will make about 11,000 tons per day for all the factories, or say $80,000 paid out for this industry. Not one of these factories would have been built or improved had the "Wilson-Gorman" act remained a law upon our statute books.
Prof. Hilgard of the University of California states that California is capable of producing from the beet more than one-half of the sugar required for consumption in the United States.

The cattle industry of our State, quired for consumption in the United States.

The cattle industry of our State, which had grown to vast proportions by reason of our rich alfalfa fields and grazing pastures, was menaced and almost ruined by competition from cattle raisers of Mexico who graze their herds upon untaxed land and who pay their vaqueros some 50 cents per day in depreciated silver. The "Wilson-Gorman" Bill ilcensed live stock to enter California and other States upon payment of a tax that was merely nominal. The Dingley Bill effectually put up the bars, and today cattle, sheep and other stock raised in Mexico, to enter the United States, must pay a duty per head that amply protects our people against this unjust competition. I mention these facts as an illustration of the wise judgment and patriotic metics the influenced the framers of this

those of foreign lands. Is there any one in this vast audience who wishes to go back to the state of affairs that prevailed four years ago? If not, then vote for the Republican State ticket, for Republican Congressmen and Republican members of the Legislature, for the work before Congress has not ended and cannot end so long as there are American interests, American rights and American matters to foster and protect.

The opposition says: "You are always talking about the tariff. Why do you not talk about something else?" The fact is, my friends, it is a question that concerns and interests you and every individual and, collectively, the welfare of our nation, and until the question is fully settled and the people are a unit upon a line of policy to which there is no opposition, we must continue to talk it. You might as well say that the preachers of the gospel, who have been discussing sin for many centuries, should stop speaking against it. I suppose they will continue to discuss sin until sin quits, and so we propose to talk tariff until opposition quits obstructing American progress. You say it is an old issue, therefore we should not discuss it. Yes, it is co-evil with the existence of our government. The prosperity of our people depends in a great measure upon the manner in which it is adjusted.

If there are any sins of ommission or commission in the Dingley Bill, then commission in the Dingley Bill, then I say we Republicans are responsible for them. If there is any good in it, we are to be credited with it; if there is any bad, the blame is ours, for only one Democrat voted for the bill, and that Democrat, Senator McHenry, did so for the purpose of protecting the sugar industry of his State.

NATIONAL FINANCES. NATIONAL FINANCES.

During the fiscal year ending June 30 last, there has been received in the United States $99,849,059 in gold, net, from foreign countries, which I am told by one of our leading bankers, repreents the balance in exchange in favor sents the balance in exchange in favor of this country. He also assured me that this marvelous increase was the result of Congressional adjustment and the restoration of confidence in business circles by reason of the election of a Republican administration. Thus a greater amount of money in good gold has been added to the sum already in circulation than could have been added in silver by the mints to free coinage in three years, running the three mints to their full capacity.

Three months have elapsed since the beginning of the present fiscal year, and there has been no cessation of the flow of gold to the United States. There has been months $15,000,000, and there is now on the way from Australia to this port over $3,000,000.

The increase in exports for the twelve months ending June 30, 1898, were $180,318,312 more than they were for the previous year ending June 30, 1897; while the decrease in imports for the same period of time was $149,000,000, or say $320,000,000 in favor of the United States for the year.

PROTECTION TO LABOR.

PROTECTION TO LABOR. The Republican party has ever been the friend of labor; not by fingling and meaningless declarations in its platforms, but by vigorous action and by such legislative policy as will elevate and advance the dignity of labor.

such legislative policy as will elevate and advance the dignity of labor.

During the previous administration Congress passed a bill known as the "Non-Partisan Labor Commission." It went to President Cleveland during the closing days of Congress, but he neglected to sign it, and it falled to become a law. The present Congress took it up again and it passed the Senate and House of Representatives, and was signed by President McKinley the day it was presented for his signature. It provides that there shall be nineteen commissioners; five selected by the Senate, five appointed by the Speaker of the House of Representatives, and nine appointed by the President. It is further provided that these commissioners shall be selected from different political parties and represent respectively the different branches of labor, from the coal-miner and the mechanic, from the farmer and the agriculturist, from the professional man and the merchant. They are to meet from time to time and carefully weigh and consider the various phases of the labor question as presented by the different States and Territories of the Union, and from the knowledge so acquired devise and recommend such legislation as will best protect and dignify labor. The commission has already been appointed, and it consists of representative men from the different States of the Union, and I doubt not that their work will be productive of great good to the people.

The last Congress also passed what is known as the "Railroad Arbitration Bill." which provides for a peaceful settlement of differences which may arise between railroad companies and their employés. Hereafter, instead of precipitating a strike and blocking the arise between railroad companies and their employés. Hereafter, instead of precipitating a strike and blocking the wheels of commerce and trade; instead of spreading distress and suffering to the employés as well as to the public of spreading distress and suffering to the employes as well as to the public, they are to proceed in an orderly manner to settle their grievances before a board of arbitrators. These arbitrators are selected in equal numbers by the employes and the railway company, and their decision is final and binding upon both parties. Every fair-minded man will agree that this is a proper solution of the problem. We all have a common obect in view; that is, the happiness and welfare of the people of our country; and if the government fails to aid in securing this, it is wanting in some essential factor. The last Congress also passed a law making the application of the eight-hour system of labor upon public buildings apply to sub-contractors as well as original contractors of the government. That is, the contractor who has been awarded the excavation and construction of the new postoffice building in San Francisco cannot sublet it to contractors who will work their men twelve or fifteen hours a day. Do you want any stronger evidence that the Republican party is the friend of labor?

you want any stronger evidence that the Republican party is the friend of labor?

The present Congress also passed a bill for the protection of American seamen and the fostering of commerce; it passed the House of Representatives and the Senate, but, having received many amendments, all of which met the approval of the owners of vessels as well as those who man them, is now mutually satisfactory to both narties at interest; and in the early days of Congress, when it assembles in December, these amendments will undoubtedly be concurred in by the House of Representatives and the bill become alaw, thus giving further evidence of our party's interest in our seamen upon the seas as well as our workingmen who live at home with us.

I believe in the dignity of labor—I believe in good wages for man and woman—I believe that the best interests of this country are subserved when the laboring man, the mechanic, the artisan and the farimer earns wages that enable him to support himself and family, clothe and educate his children, thus preparing them for the great duties of American citizenship. And that is one of the reasons why I had rather see the sugar beet cultivated on our farms in California by free American labor, than encourage the raising of sugar by peon and servile labor in far-away possessions. I believe in paying our labor in the best money in the world—and for that reason. I want to see our silver dol-silver, which is now in our vaults in the form of bars of bullion piled up in the treasury; and the mints of the United States are today working and stamping these silver dollars, and the fractional denominations thereof, with the seal of the United States which makes their value equal to gold in makes their value equal to gold this and any other country of REPUBLICAN- LEGISLATION. The present Republican Congress also passed a law to prevent all kinds of adulteration of food so as to compe the dishonest manufacturer or vendi the dishonest manufacturer or vender of eatables to stamp upon each package its true contents. If he attempts misrepresentation then he must suffer the penalty imposed by this law. The California dairyman, the makers of butter and cheese and other farm products, and the makers of olive oil, are protected against the invasion of the oleomargarine vender and cotton-seed oil manufacturer.

This Republican Congress also at its last session passed a National Bankruptcy Law, whereby those who have met with reverses in business and are burdened with debts they cannot remove, may be relieved of the same by appearing in any United States court in any State of the Union. If they are honest and make an honest exhibit of their affairs, they will be given relief with comparatively little expense or annoyance.

It was It is also sometimes known as the "Sherman Anti-Trust Act." It was passed by a Republican Congress and signed by President Harrison. Its great aim was to demolish trusts and monopolies and promote a healthy, beneficent and prosperous competition in trade and commerce. It was passed primarily against corporations and aggregated wealth. Its comprehensive and salutary object is plainly indicated by the very title of the act, which reads: "An act to protect trade and commerce against unlawful restraints and monopolies." By provision of the act it is declared that every contract, combination in the form of trust or otherwise, or conspiracy, in restraint of trade or commerce among the several States, or with foreign nations, is illegal. The act provides, further, that any violation of its provisions shall be deemed a misdemeanor, the punishment being a fine not to exceed 5000 or imprisonment not to exceed one year or both. The Circuit courts of the United States are given jurisdiction to prevent and restrain violations of this act. THE WAR WITH SPAIN.

The present administration started out buoyant with hope and with every promise for the future—that there would be no extraordinary dises, especially from foreign of Cuba were a people struggling for their liberty, oppressed by starvation to a point of extermination. The generous people of the United States had conpeople of the United States had contributed millions of dollars and tons of provisions to the famishing reconcentrados, quantities of which were wrongfully appropriated by their oppressors, the Spanish soldiers. The appeals from these suffering people, the outrages upon American citizens, the obstruction and damage to American commercial interests, and finally the infamous blowing up and destruction of a battleship of the United States navy, the sacrificing of 266 lives of, brave seamen, who had been lulled into security and without thought of danger and without having been given the privilege of resistance, so shocked and outraged the sensibilities of our nation that the United States should intervene and declare that this persecution must cease.

The President, however, realizing the

The President, however, realizing the The Frestdent, however, realizing the horrors of war and the great sorrow it would bring to our nation, resisted these appeals as long as it was possible fo him to do so and maintain the honor and dignity of our nation. Congress therefore declared war against Spain and directed the President to use the army and navy for the purpose of spain and directed the President to use the army and navy for the purpose of intervening and stopping these outrages against humanity. Declaration was made by Congress that it was a war for humanity alone. Well and faithfully has that declaration been observed. Call was made upon the several States for volunteers to enlist in the service of the army, and new vessels were purchased and men-of-war improvised for the navy; the harbors and ports of our citles were additionally fortified and protected from threatened attack of the Spanish fleet harboring on our coast. on our coast.

THE ARMY.

In response to the call of the President, 200,000 of the volunteer troops were received as soldiers of the army of the United States; they were armed, equipped and transported to destination for which they had been detailed; subsistence and stores were furnished, and all this was one within a period of ninety days. It was not a Republican or partisan war, but the people of all parties and from every State and Territory of the Union volunteered in the service and defense and dignity of our nation. The broadmindedness of the President was shown when he appointed Gen. Joe Wheeler, Gen. Fitzhugh Lee, Gen. Gordon and others who had served with distinction in the Confederate army, and who in turn, in many instances selected as their staff advisors those who had been soldiers in the Union army.

THE NAVY.

The achievement of the navy has sent thrill of admiration and patriotism to the heart of every true and faithful the heart of every true and faithful American citizen. The grand naval battle of Commodore Dewey in the Harbor of Manila, where a splendid fleet of modern warships, armed and equipped with modern appliances and a drilled and experienced crew of seamen and marines, was destroyed without the loss of a single man of the American navy, must be written on the pages of history as one of the greatest naval achievements of the age. No less credit is due our brave naval commanders and sailors who achieved such spleners and sailors who achieved such splendid victories on the coast of Cuba. Commodores Sampson and Schley, Philip, Watson, Clark and others, deserve the commendation of every one who admires bravery and cool judgment in the hour of trial and peril. The brave act of Ensign Bagley, who was the first to offer his life in the cause, and the daring act of Lieut. Hobson and his brave crew, rank among the greatest deeds recorded in the history of the world, Not alone to Lieut. Hobson, but to the six associates with him, ers and sailors who achieved such splenson, but to the six associates with him, we should pay the same tribute. Aye, I might say that the four hundred volunteers who were denied the privilege of going on the Merrimac, were heroes To me it was a great privilege that my position gave me the opportunity to procure the names and have embodied in the resolution, a recognition by name of the coal passer and stoker in the engine-room, with that of the seamen on the deck who accompanied Lieut. Hobson on his perilous expedition. Each of these brave men was granted a medal for valorous service, and I would rather have earned that medal than possess the wealth of the richest man in the city. Hundreds of instances occurred during the blockade medal than possess the wealth of the richest man in the city. Hundreds of instances occurred during the blockade and naval engagement in Cuban waters that showed the spirit animating our naval commanders, officers and crews to be one of humanity rather than of revenge. When the crews of the sinking Spanish ships were struggling for their lives, American seamen came to their rescue and American seamen gave up their own clothing to cover the nakedness of Spanish sailors whom they had been fighting.

What grander sentiment can be handed down the ages than that uttered by Capt. Philip of the battleship Texas—when by our own guns the Spanish battleships were silenced, when the hot shell was pouring into their disabled vessels and the Spanish flag had been pulled down, our sailors instinctively commenced to cheer and shout—Capt. Philip raised his hands and said: "Donct cheer, boys, the poor fellows are dying." This sentiment will live in the heart of every true lover of humanity for all time."

CALIFORNIA'S PRIDE.

CALIFORNIA'S PRIDE.

As Californians we feel a State pride in the exploits of the navy, because we have furnished several of the ships in the exploits of the navy, because we have furnished several of the ships of war that have achieved a world-wide reputation for their speed, skill in construction, and the part they took in the great naval battles.

It was a Californian ship building company that built the United States cruisers San Francisco, Charleston, and Olympia, the coast defense ship Monterey, and the battleship Oregon. Sheridan was but twenty miles from Winchester when that battle commenced, and he covered the distance in time to win the day. The battleship Oregon was 14,000 miles away from the seat of war by sea, when she steamed out of Puget Sound to join our Atlantic naval squadron. The memorable voyage and the part she took in the destruction of the fleet under command of Admiral Cervera, fills one of the brightest pages in naval history; while the Olympia is entitled to almost equal credit for the part she took in the naval engagement in Manila Bay.

These splendid vessels were all built by American workmen and mechanics, from iron, steel, copper, lead, zinc, glass, lumber and materials, produced by American workmen from our mines and forests. The money paid them for their labor they use to provide for their families and to educate their children in the duties of American citizenship; and thereby the whole community hope before many more years shall have passed, that wise legislation will have given such a stimulus to our merchant marine, that ten thousand mechanics and laborers will be at work on this coast bilding vessels to transport the product of our farms, in vessels flying at the mizzen peak the stars and stripes and officered and manned by American seamen and boys, representatives of our home.

COST OF THE WAR. To carry on the war successfully, it was necessary to raise funds for the purpose, $1,000,000 per day being expended for the support of the army and navy. This could not be done from the ordinary revenue provided for the support of the government; therefore, a special War Revenue Bill was devised, and the tayes under that law vised, and the taxes under that law were distributed so it would not touch for injure any industry or oppress the laboring man or the poor of our coun-try. A stamp duty was imposed upon checks, bonds, stocks, certificates, deeds wortends. ls, mortgages, etc., upon liquors, tobacco and upon bankers, stockbeer, tobacco and upon bankers, stockbrokers, merchants and others. The tax was so adjusted that no one has been oppressed or inconvenienced; and after the treaty of peace has been agreed upon, we will undoubtedly dispense with the greater portion of this War Revenue Bill. And yet I think every American feels a pride, a pleasure, in contributing his pro rata for the expense of carrying on this war which has added so much to our greatness as a nation. A few weeks ago a lady with whom I am acquainted proposed to her husband that she would not buy anything upon which a war tax was paid if he would promise not to drink beer or smoke tobacco. His reply was: "My dear, I should be glad to comply with your request in to drink beer or smoke tobacco. His reply was: "My dear, I should be glad to comply with your request in the matter if it were not for the fact that I feel it my duty not to withdraw my support from the government in this, its hour of need." We have shown to the complete satisfaction of the entire world that the honor and dignity of, our nation can and will be maintained. It is a bond for peace in the future that is worth more to us as a nation than every dollar the war has cost, and we have demonstrated to every European power that the United States is invincible upon land and sea.

BOND ISSUE.

It was not deemed advisable that the present generation should pay all the cost of the new harbor fortifications, the additional battleships and other incidentals growing out of the war. This generation is not to pay all of this debt by which our children and our children's children are to be benefited. We therefore provided for the issuance of a certain low interest-bearing bond, and of small denomination.

Democratic friends complained of the large surplus in the treasury inder President Harrison's adminis-ration: there being in the treasury in March, 1888, $218,000,000—well, we elected tration: there being in the treasury in March, 1888, $218,000,000—well, we elected a Democratic President, Grover Cleveland—and in January, 1895, the gold reserve was reduced to $40,000,000, and during his four years' administration in time of peace, he issued $262,000,000 deper cent. bonds. The present administration issued $200,000,000 3 per cent. bonds to pay the expenses of the war: and President McKinley, instead of asking a New York syndicate to take them, took the people into his confidence and gave them the preference, although financiers chaimed they would not be taken outside of the money centers: there were 320,000 applicants for the bonds, the aggregate sum of applications amounting to $1,400,000,000, Over $100,000,000 the remaining $100,000,000 went in sums less than $4500 to persons, firms and corporations. These 3 per cent. bonds now command a handsome premium. The government sold the bonds at par, and paid no commission or brokerage. What a high encomium on President McKinley's administration.

The single tax advocates find encouragement for the adoption of their pet theory in the fact that several of its most zealous champions have been nominated on the Democratic-Populist ticket for high positions of honor and influence. There is a difference of opinion among the friends of this new economic measure as to its practical application. All I think, however, will agree that it is proposed to collect all of the revenue for the support of State, county and municipal government, public schools and other institutions, by a direct tax upon land regardless of the improvements. It is not clear to my mind why the owner of property situated upon Market, Montgomery and other streets of San Francisco should be exempt from paying taxes upon improvements that bring in an income of $20,000 per month. while his neighbor, who owns a similar lot, but is only able to construct that bring in an income of $20,000 per month, while his neighbor, who owns a similar lot, but is only able to construct a cheap building, capable of yielding an income barely sufficient to pay insurance and interest, should be taxed equally heavy. Why should railroad cars and locomotives, banks, merchandise, money, jewelry and all other personal property be exempt from taxation? Why should the burden fall upon the farmer, who tills the soll early and lafe to make a living? Why should the poor man who has a small lot upon which he has a home cottage, be compelled to pay all of the taxes for the support of the government, while the rich personal-property holder is exempt? The reason is not clear, unless it be based upon the principle that they are always willing to let others bear the burden, and heat of the day, while they recline in the shadow.

INDIAN WAR CLAIMS.

There is an indebtedness of about $4,000,000 due California for money advanced to suppress the Indian wars, and equip troops in this State during the rebellion. These claims have been pending for thirty years without your representatives having been able to effect a settlement and collect the money. A bill is now pending in Congress; it has passed the House of Representatives and the Senate, where it was amended to cover the amount of these claims. If the House of Representatives concurs in these amendments, and I believe it will next winter, the bill will become a law, and California can thank a Republican Congress and a Republican President for this delayed act of justice to our State. There is an indebtedness of about

THE STATE CONVENTION. The Republican State Convention was composed of 788 delegates, or one delegate representing every 185 Republican voters in the State. There were present representatives from very district in very county of the State, selected at a primary election, or otherwise appointed upon a plan recommended by the State Central Committee. The farmer, the miner, the lumberman, the horticulturist, the stock-raiser, the merchant, the manufacturer, the journalist, the lawyer, the physician; all went there at considerable personal expense, without the hope of fee or reward, to work for the advancement of the Republican party, the success of which they believe is for the best interests of our State. In the Republican party there are no bosses and no followers, all are leaders. There is not a party chain, there is no party lash. That man is out of place and astray in the Republican party who is not in favor of granting to others all that he claims for himself. Its platform is as broad as humanity.

Many names were considered by that convention for the various places of honor as its nominees, and the choice finally fell to Henry T. Gage, who will he our next Governor. friends and neighbors and the confidence and respect of all who know him. The unanimous choice of the convention was next expressed for the pioneer miner. Hon. J. H. Neff, and I incline to the opinion that the people of California will make his election pretty nearly unanimous, as I have not yet found a Democrat. Populist or Republican who is not his friend. Twenty-seven years ago I had the honor of claiming him as my colleague in our State Senate. He was then, as he has always been, a true representative of the people and their interests. All of the other nominees upon the ticket are honored and respected citizens. The renomination of Justice McFarland and Justice Van Fleet was a merited tribute to two able jurists, who should have the support of all, regardless of political affiliations. We should elect our seven Republican Congress nominees and Republican members of the Legislature, who in turn are to elect a United States Senator.

California owes this indorsement to President McKinley for his patriotism, ability, patience and wise statesmanship in bringing our nation safely into the harbor of peace.

DUTY OF THE VOTER.

DUTY OF THE VOTER.

Let us for the moment dismiss all partisan pride and put behind us every consideration of political preference or probables.

consideration of political preference or prejudice.

Let us, as American citizens, look the truth squarely in the face, for it can do no harm. As between man and man, I want to ask of every Democrat, or every Populist and of every free-sliver Republican within sound of my voice, if ever within ther recollection the prospects of this nation seemed brighter or more certain than they do today.

I want to ask them how and where brighter or more certain than they do today.

I want to ask them how and where they would or could improve past conditions and more rapidly or effectually than is now being done. And finally—and I want to put this question squarely to them—is not the Republican party fairly and honestly entitled to all of the honor and all of the credit for this beneficent change that has taken place in the condition of our nation within the past two years?

In time of depression and public misfortune I do not question the right of a Democrat or a Populist to fish some strange theory of government from out the waste basket of political economy; but I am inclined to question the motives and strongly doubt the loyalty and the wisdom of the American/citizen who, stubbornly turning his face against the truth, refuses to acknowledge this nation's unquestioned prosperity simply because it has been brought about against his prophesies by the wisdom of a rival political party. There never was a better time for straying Republicans to come back into the familiar fold; there never was a better time for Populists to concede that the great principles of Republicanism are framed for the nation's best interests, and there never was a better time for Democrats to purify their own party, by abandoning it, until it has settled back to some honest principles that do not threaten the integrity and very existence of our nation. There never was a better time than this for American statesmen to be thoroughly American. Not in this generation have the American people been in a mood so fraternal and so marked by good feeling and generous affection. The horrid and unnatural line of sectionalism has been thrown down, I hope, forever. The last prestige of sectionalism has been thrown down, I hope, one thought, one purpose, the up-building and permanent advancement of the welfare of the greatest nation that God ever permitted to exist upon this earth.

To the Democrat and to the Populist To the Democrat and to the Populist I would say, that President McKinley is your President as well as ours. The flag that now floats over Hawaii and Manila is my flag as well as yours; the peace commission that is now at its labors in Paris is serving you as well as serving me. We who have stayed at home have a duty to perform quite as sacred and quite as necessary as that which belongs to our boys in blue on the field of battle. They cannot refuse to charge the enemy, because the ad-matter what our politics may be.

This is the doctrine that will govern the conduct of the noblest type of American citizens on next election day.

We, will vote as Americans, not as paptisans, and we shall demonstrate to all the world that, despite the promptings of party pride or prejudice, we are above all things in the world—Americans—that we are true to our country and its fiag and willing, nay, more than willing, eager—to sustain our administration and justify this war in the eyes of all the world.

The Americus Club came over from Pasadena to take part in the meeting. The members of the organization left the cars at Temple street and formed in line of parade. The Careful Servant.

[Detroit Free Press:] One of the Michigan officers who was at the front during the brief war had with him a colored attendant, who was as proud of his place as though he were commander-in-chief, and whose ideas of military discipline were as rigid as those of the veriest martinet. Owing especially to the thleving proclivities of some of the Cuban hangers-on, he was under strict command not to let anything go from the officer's tent without a personal order from him.

One evening, as the officer and Gen. Wheeler met some distance from the camp, the general said, with a smack of his lips: "I hear, sir, that you received some very fine brandled peaches from home."

An Informal reception at 3 o'clock in the parlors of the Westminster had been arranged by the Young Men's Republican League. Even before the appointed hour many prominent citizens arrived, eager to do honor to California's distinguished representative. The parlors had been tastefully decorated with a profusion of flowers and potted plants, and a handsome American flag was draped from the celling.

As the guests arrived they were presented to Senator Perkins by Arthur W. Kinney and R. J. Waters. Among those who stood in line awaiting their turn to greet the Senator were hundreds of well-known business men and professional men, many city and county officials, representatives of the various civic institutions and almost every prominent Republican in the city. Many Republicans were present also from Pasadena. Pomona, Long Beach, San Pedro, Santa Monica and other out-of-town points. The gathering could not have been more thoroughly representative of the city and county.

Senator Perkins gave a cordial greeting to all. Among those who came forward to clasp his hand were many old

He expressed the belief that the coming elections would result in a gain of several Republican Senators. While some Congressmen would be lost, this would be more than compensated by the gains. He expressed strong confidence in a magnificent Republican victory at the election next Tuesday.

STRANGE BRAIN WOUND. A Mechanic Alive Despite a Remarkable Wound.

Alive Despite a Remarkable Wound.

[New York Times-Democrat:] The hospital records of the recent war have directed a good deal of attention to the cases of brain wounds from which the patients survived, and the fact has been ret down to the credit of the Mauser bullet. It is well known among surgeons, however, that an injury to the brain from any cause is not necessarily fatal, and an admirable illustration is to be found in the person of a mechanic now employed at one of the foundries of this city.

He is somewhat sensitive over the matter, so his name need not be mentioned, but the circumstances were these: Some years ago, while working at a lathe in Birmingham, a piece of machinery broke, and he was struck on the left side of the head, just above the ear, by a flying boil. The blow fractured the skull, and the iron penetrated the brain itself to a depth of about two inches. The man fell as if shot, and lay unconscious for several weeks.

His death was hourly anticipated,

T. P.—The legislature has full power to regulate the adoption of children, and may invest any person or officer, or court with the power of receiving, witnessing and declaring the adoption, and prescribe the form of adoption. The matter of adoption belongs to the legislative and not the judicial department of the government; and though the legislative and not the judicial department of the government; and though the act of passing upon the adoption may be judicial in the sense of being an act of judgment, that does not make it any part of the judicial power spoken of in the Constitution, and by it vested in courts. And so the Judge apart from the court may possess the power of adoption.

The essential foundation of the proceeding is the consent of the persons named in the statute; and when this has been given in the presence of the named in the statute; and when this has been given in the presence of the proper Judge and manifested in writing, and by the order of such Judge, the contract cannot be declared invalid, because of some merely technical objection to the manner in which the Judge who signed the order of adoption may have discharged his duty.

L. O. M.—A mere desire of one tenant I. O. M.—A mere desire of one tenant in common & sufficient to authorize a court to dissolve his relation with his co-tenants. The object of the partition of property is to enable each party to obtain the title to, and the use for all future time, in severalty, of some definite portion of it. But there are restrictions. A partition must be made of an entire tract. One tenant in common cannot have partition of a part only of the entire common property and have his interest located in that part. Nor can a judgment of partition of several tracts of land be piecemeal as to any one tract.

any one tract.

T. R. A.—In ordinary case of foreclosure it is the rule that the title ordered to be sold is only the title which was held by the mortgagor at the date of the mortgage. This rule is applicable to all cases of foreclosure, except-perhaps when facts of an equitable character are stated which show that a title acquired by a vendee of the mortgagor after his purchase from the mortgagor should also be subjected to the lien of the mortgage. The exceptional instance arises also where the mortgagor has, subsequent to the execution of the mortgage, acquired a title which enures by way of estoppel to the benefit of the mortgage. In such case, the foreclosure operates on the subsequently acquired title to the same extent as if originally held by the mortgagor and the sale under the decree passes it. In all other cases the estate mortgaged is the only estate brought under the consideration of the court, and the only estate affected by its decree.

(2.) A city is liable for damages caused by the flooding of private premises in consequence of a defective sewer, or of the neglect of its officers to keep the sewer in repair after knowledge of the defective condition; and it is immaterial whether the water doing the damage comes from a natural water course turned into the sewer by the city authorities or from surface water flowing into the sewer. For it is the duty of the city when it does provide waterways to provide such as are sufficient to carry off the water that might be reasonably expected to accumulate. Nor does the fact that the precipitation of water was extraordinary relieve the city from liability for injury to a private property caused by their negligence in keeping the sewer in proper repair after ample knowledge of its defective condition. Where a sewer is sufficient in its capacity every property owner has a right to expect that the city will keep it in repair, and no citizen is bound to repair, and no citizen is bound to repair in himself, and in failing to do so is not guilty of negligence, even if his house was built on a lot below grade whereby it was exposed to the damage.

L. O. T .- The rule of idem sonans is sometimes carried to what would seem an extreme length. Thus in a California case the name Thomas Heptum was al-lowed to pass in a bond for Thomas Hepburn.

D. C.—The drastic writ of ne exeat probably cannot be used in California.

L. R. D.—Even legal terms are largely relative and do not admit of exact definition or classification. The word fraud is an instance. So is negligence or diligence. The California Supreme Court said: "Negligence is not absolute, but is relative to circumstances surrounding the case and always relates to some circumstance of time, place and person." It is so in general. Botanists, for example, have to be content with defining a weed as a plant out of its place.

R. S. S. writes: A leases a tract of land (on which there is a homestead) from B. If A fails to fulfill the contract he is to forfeit $500. To this contract, at the request of A. B's wife placed her signature. In case A fails to fulfill, has Mrs. B any interest in the $500? Or if A does fulfill his part of the contract, does Mrs. B have any interest in the consideration of the lease; This point, I think, has never been decided. A homestead is a very peculiar piece of property—even more so than what is called community property, wherein the husband and wife are one and that one is the husband so long as he lives. A married woman may take out the homestead even without her husband's consent (79 Cal., 203.) In order to alienate it a joint act is necessary, and in the strict statutory mode; a mortgage alone by the husband is vold, and of course a lease is, or any kind of a lienation. It may be that a lease with her signature will be regarded (I think it will) in the light of an abandonment pro tanto; and this being made on a consideration, she surely is entitled to an equal ishare of the $500 forfeiture, if the lease is not fulfilled; or, if it is, to the benefits of the lease itself in equal proportion. There is no possible means of extraditing a witness; sometimes it is even hard to get an escaping prisoner back, or a fugitive from justice. Formerly important witnesses were caged in jail if they were not able to give bond for their appearance. That barbarous practice is, I think, generally abandoned. But a compuisory deposition can be taken from a fleeing witness, if he can be caught.

You can file a declaration of homestead alone, or in this case, preferably by joint application with your wife: and it will be exempt from execution thenceforth, if done before a judgment lien attaches.

Big Printing House Insolvent.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 2.—Some of the creditors of the printing firm of Francis Valentine & Co. today presented a petition to the United States District Court, praying that the firm be declared bankrupt. The firms interested in today's proceedings have claims against the firm aggregating about $10,000. They say that the firm warned one of its creditors of its condition last October, and this firm filed attachments against the property. A temporary injunction, restraining the Sheriff from selling the assets of the firm, was issued. Big Printing House Insolvent.

AT THE CITY HALL

CIVIL SERVICE OR NOT.

FUTURE EXCELLENCE OF PUBLIC LIBRARY DEPENDS UPON IT.

Election of an Inexperienced Assistant Has Been Considered-Fire Commissioners' Meeting - Figueroa Street to Be Accepted-Ap-

At their regular meeting Saturday the Board of Library Trustees will consider whether they will adhere to their rules of civil service in filling the vacant position of first assistant libra-rian or whether they will disregard their rules and appoint, through some influence, political or otherwise, a person who has had no library experience whatever to a position which above all others demands some knowledge of the work. The fact that the members have been seriously considering the matter onting an outside person is ad-by them, but they will not state who has been most favorably considered. The name of the person whom they have thought of appointing is known, and it is further known that she is a relative of a leading attorney who is interested in the water litiga tion, but just what influence is being brought to bear to secure her appointment can only be suggested by the fact that a campaign is now on and many strange things are done during a political fight.

More than a year ago Drector Garland secured the adoption of a resolution which provides that all vacancies in any of the classes must be filled by appointment from the ranks of those who have spent at least one year in what is known as class D, and have worked at the salary paid to that class. This rule, established by the adoption of the resolution, is still in force. Those members who have been considering the employment of an inexperienced person in the position of first assistant librarian assert that the civil-service rules do not apply to that position, nor do they apply to the positions of chief librarian or second assistant. If this is true an assistant who has worked for years in the library, and who has reached the highest class, cannot hope to become an assistant unless she happens to have sufficient influence to induce the board to appoint her to that position and in the present instance greater influence than that possessed by an outside person might be neces.

by an outside person might be necessary.

If politics is the influence which is being brought to bear in the filling of the present vacancy and through that influence an appointment is to be made of a person wholly unequipped for the duties, over several who, the members admit, would make an excellent official, the Democrats on the board have a decided advantage. The element of politics has never entered into library affairs under the present board, and it is largely due to this fact that the administration of this board has resulted in such a vast improvement in the library. The board is composed of three Democrats, Messrs. Dockweller, Burbank and Rogers, and two Republicans, Messrs. Foster and Garland. If the matter is settled at the meeting next Saturday, the Democrats will have an opportunity to take snap judgment, and could do much as they pleased by a vote of three to one, for Mr. Garland is out of the city, and will not return until after Saturday. Whether the matter will be postponed until a full board is present will not be known until Saturday. In all matters about which there has been a division of the board in the past the divisions have not been along political lines, and except from some of the more rabid members of "the push," there has been no demand upon the board to let politics enter into their business or through them into the library.

If it is decided by the board in this instance to break down civil-service rules which, impliedly at least, apply to the positions of first and second assistants, the result would be to open the library to politics. There have been five applications made for the two positions from outside persons, but only the one before referred to has been seriously considered.

It has been learned that some of the

It has been learned that some of the nembers of the board are disposed to criticise Chief Librarian Wadleigh for criticise Chief Librarian Wadleigh for having caused the present discussion of the matter. Such criticism would be unjust, however, as Mrs. Wadleigh had nothing whatever to do with the mat-ter. She simply obeyed the orders of the board in making the report she did, and is not at all responsible for its publication.

PAY FOR AN AWNING.

Damage Caused by a Fire Engine Must Be Settled For.

The city will probably have to pay fo large awning for the Broadway Department Store, which was ruined by age was done without fault of the fire men. A claim for the price of the awning was presented at the regular meeting of the Board of Fire Commission ers yesterday morning, the communi-cation in which the claim was assert ed coming from the City Council, to which body it had first been presented. There was a fire in the vicinity of the store mentioned some time ago, and engine No. 8 took water from the hy-drant in front of the store. Sparks from he engine ignited the awning and be with the small hose on the engine the awning was ruined. The proprietor of ance on his place, and the insurance companies paid his loss. They then de-manded that the city pay them what their expense had been, and presented a request to the City Council for the money. The matter was referred to the Chief for investigation by the Board of

He stated he had ordered the remains embalmed and shipped to the mother of the deceased at Fort Wayne, Ind. The cost of this would be about $200, and the Board directed the Chief, upon the receipt of the bills for the service, to make a demand upon the relief fund for the amount. The Chief reported that as the old horse which has been used in the supply wagon for a long time has been afflicted with an incurable disease, he afflicted with an incurable disease, he

It was also reported to the Commission that one of the horses of the No. 6 engine, while responding to an alarm of fire. On recommendation of the Chief, the petition of P. B. Ray for permission to establish a steam bofler in a barber shop at No. 214 West Third street was granted. Certificates of Nomination.

There has been no haste in the filin of the certificates of nomination of the candidates nominated at the two city conventions, only two such certificates having been filed with the City Clerk. These are the certificates of W. H. Stearns for the position of member of the Board of Education from the Eighth Ward. The certificate of L. A. Several persons are actively at work throughout the city circulating copies of a petition to the City Council, asking that body to order a special elec-tion for the purpose of so extending tion for the purpose of so extending the boundaries of the city as to include within the corporate limits the University Precinct. Almost every person to whom this petition is preciously signs it and when the corporate into the corporate of the person to whom this petition is presented signs it, and when the combined petitions are filed, it is probable that they will bear a greater number of signatures than that recently filed for the annexation of Garvanza. If possible, the City Council will have the matter of the annexation of these two suburbs disposed of at one election. If the petitions when presented bear the requisite number of signatures, the law compels the City Council to call the special election prayed for.

ME THE COURT HOUSE

THE VERDICT RENDERED

MURDER IN THE SECOND DEGREE RETURNED AGAINST CLARK.

the Verdict Was Declared-Attempt to Dope Deputy District Attorney McComas-Sentence on Monday.

The jury in the Clark murder tria vesterday returned a verdict against the defendant of murder in the second degree, and in so doing once again certified to the uncertainty of a jury's finding.

At a quarter past 11 o'clock Mr. Mc-Comas concluded his argument, the court instructed the jury, and at the half-hour the twelve "good men and true" retired to the seclusion of jury-room to consider their verdict. A great number of the people who have followed the windings of the trial day by day retained their seats after the jury trial, evidently determined to be present when the climax was reached Clark's parents and the numerous lady the trial began, also remained in the

It was half-past 2 o'clock when a knock was heard on the door of the jury room, but it was only a demand that the surveyor's map showing the ground plan of oJe Hunter's house and ground pian of oJe Hunter's house and its immediate surroundings, should be passed in. Application was made to Judge Smith, who was in chambers, but he refused to permit the map to be passed in to the jury, inasmuch as the plan had not been filed in the case. At half-past 3 o'clock there came another knock on the door of the jury-room, and the jury announced their readiness to return into court. There was a delay for a few moments while Harry Clark was being-brought over from the jail. He took his seat with the self-possession that has never deserted him during the trial. His aged mother, weakly and broken-down in appearance, sat by his side.

While the jury were filing into place the courtroom had filled again. The whisper had penetrated the corridors of what was happening, and never-foral long time has such interest in a trial been shown as in this one. The education and social status of the defendant made the verdict to be rendered a matter of curious recoulties. ts immediate surroundings, should b education and social status of the de-fendant made the verdict to be ren-dered a matter of curious speculation. It would be either a verdict of murder in the first degree, and Harry Clark would hang, or it would be one of ac-quittal. Even counsel for the defense had conceded that much in his argu-ment to the jury, and so it was felt that the jury had reached in their dement to the jury, and so it was felt that the jury had reached in their deliberations one extreme or the other. But that was just where the jury exercised their prerogative and fooled the attorneys and others who speculated upon the return.

When the court called upon the jury to declare their verdict, and the foreman arose to do so, the defendant fixed his eyes upon the man in whose hand lay the paper on which was writ his future destiny. Intensely he gazed, and a flush was on his cheeks, but nothing of fear was manifested, only the most intense interest. His little, white-haired mother by his side shrunk in her chair. As the words, "And we find the defendant guilty of murder in the second degree," fell from the foreman's lips Mrs. Clark threw up her hands in supplication and horror, and exclaiming, "Oh, my poor boy! My Harry!" she feebly turned to the defendant and leaned over him.

Attorney Allen demanded that the jury be polled. Eyers, juryman having declared the verdict to be his individual verdict, counsel gave notice of a motion to be made for a new trial. As Judge Smith left the bench Mrs. Clark put her arms around her son's neck, and, after kissing him again and neck, and, after kissing him again and again, she leaned her head on the table before her and moaned out her sorrow. Friends tried to comfort her, but the tears in their own eyes belied their words. Mr. Clark, who is rather brusque in appearance, gathered his wife in his arms, and while his own eyes were glistening, half led, half carried her from the courtroom.

Then the defendant was returned to the County Jail. He had not betrayed any emotion when the verdict was returned, and only when seeking to comfort his mother did his face relax into a smile as he patted her hand and told her not to mind.

With those closely concerned in the result out of the courtroom the tongues of the attorneys were loosed, and professional interest came to the front again in discussing by what process of reasoning the jury had arrived at a verdict of murder in the second degree.

The Supreme Court of this State has said: "In dividing murder into, two degrees, the Legislature intended to assign to the first, as deserving of greater punishment, all murders of a cruel and said: "In dividing murder into, two degrees, the Legislature intended to assign to the first, as deserving of greater punishment, all murders of a cruel and aggravated character; and to the second, all other kinds of murder which are murder at common law, and to establish a test by which the degree of every case of murder may be readily ascertained. That test may be thus stated: Is the killing wilful (that is to say, intentional.) deliberate and premeditated? If it is, the case falls within the first, and if not, within the second degree."

Wong Sing Hay had half of his head blown off, besides another wound equally hideous in his body, and both points at which the shot made entrance were badly powder-burned. On its face such a crime would appear to be just what both the prosecution agreed that it was—a cold-blooded and dastardly murder. It was the one point upon which Mr. McComas—and Mr. Shinnagreed. The only point that at first glance might appear to lift the crime out of the first category would be the "premeditation." But premeditation in law does not mean only a determination some time before carrying into execution; on the contrary, "premedi-out of the first category would be the included in the the very making and the make one time before carrying into execution; on the contrary, "premeditation in law does not mean only a determination attion some time before carrying into execution; on the contrary, "premeditation" is held to cover a determination arrived at in a moment or two. In such case the murder of the Chinese landryman could only fall in the first class, and it was generally conceded that the verdict had been arrived at by some process of compremise, for juries do sometimes give and take with one another in that way, rather than put to the county to a large expense in having another trial.

The penalty for murder in the section degree is a sentence of not less than ten years up to a life term in the States prison. On Monday next Harry Clark will be brought up for sentence of Mr. McComas on Tu-sday afternoon. At the noon recess he made his escape from the Courthouse, not wishing to talk to the numberless people who besieged him to talk business, or give him pointers on his argument. Returning along Spring street at about a quarter past 1 o'clock a well-dressed at all let by own-min the court of the proffered cigar and made his escape, making his way to his own office in the Courthouse to cogitate and get his thinking apparatus into smooth work-ing order before going into court at 2 o'clock ing order before going into court at 2 o'clock.

Pulling from his pocket the cigar so recently received, McComas lit up and puffed away in calm content for about ten minutes, but was forced to quit. Whether he was "doped," or made the victim of the now celebrated knock-out drops administered in a cigar will never be known, but his brain, instead of being cleared by the fumes of to-bacco—and McComas is a devoted worshiper at the shrine of Lady Nicotine—was in a state of "obfustication" to use his own lucid term. Upon standing up, the underpinning of the legal light threatened to give way, and he was in bad shape to resume his address to the jury. The idea of being knocked out by any ordinary cigar was preposterous, for McComas had smoked everything in his time from Chinese punk to German cabbage stalks, and the only conclusion he could arrive at was that that too-friendly friend on Spring street had intentionally given him a cigar that was loaded.

A nip of brandy and a head douche of cold water made him feel somewhat better, but all of Tuesday McComas asserts that he felt weak about the knees and generally indisposed. Yesterday he had recovered his wonted he knees and generally indisposed. Yesterday he had recovered his wonted ire of speech, and, however his Springstreet mentor may have intended it, he did give the defendant in a meta-phorical way just what he was told to.

A DEMOCRATIC TANGLE.

Certificates of Nomination Bearing

This has not been a good year fo noothly running election machinery. but while there has been trouble in registration and more trouble in con ection with the printing contract the most trouble bids fair to materialize in Redondo township, after the election is ver-perhaps.

When the County Clerk received the certificates of nomination of candidates for the various offices in the township om the Democratic convention, one rtificate bore the name of Manly, for wnship constable, and another that Witherel, for justice of the peace. These names were, of course, printed on the ballots by County Clerk Newlin. But yesterday the Democratic nominee for constable at Redondo called upon the County Clerk for the purpose of telling him that his name is not Manly but Maxey, and he demanded that the correction be made on the ballots. It was pointed out to the visitor that while what he said might all be very true, yet the only authority the County Clerk had was the certificate of nomination, and he dare not go behind that. Mr. Manley alias Maxey betook himself for relief to Judge Van Dyke, but there again he learned that the certificate of nomination only could guide the court if legal appeal was made. The disgruntled nominee betook himself off, and as it now appears the name of Manley will appear on the ballots as Democratic nominee for constable in Redondo township.

While the case of Manley alias Maxey was being inquired into, another case of a mistake in identity was revealed. The certificate of the Democratic nominee for pustice of the peace at Redondo bore the name of Nitherel, while it is understood that a citizen by the name of Witherel is actually the Democratic party's nominee.

And now the County Clerk wants to ese names were, of course, printed the ballots by County Clerk Newlin of Witherel is actually the Democratic party's nominee.

And now the County Clerk wants to know what they are going to do about it. He stands pat, and is saying nothing, but if there are any two men in Redondo township who bear the names of Manley and Nitherel, respectively, and either of the Democratic nominees for constable or justice of the peace of the township should by any odd chance be declared elected, then these rank outsiders might lay claim to the offices. As the case stands Messrs. Maxey and Witherel have to get behind the certificates of nomination made by authority of the Democratic convention, and so far no one appears able to advise them how to do it.

PRINTING THE REGISTERS. The Injunction Suit Robbed of Its

Sting.

The latest phase of legal action taken n connection with the contract for printing the supplemental registers ppeared. The suit brought by Mc Bride, the printer, to enjoin the County Bride, the printer, to enjoin the County Clerk or the Board of Supervisors from taking delivery of the registers from Pridham & Faulkner, or the County Auditor and County Treasurer from paying the contract price, was serious affair. Judge York set hearing for Monday ne be supplied in a portion of one day, in readiness for election on the day in readiness for election on the day following.

This difficulty has been removed for, by consent of Hester & Ladd, attorneys for the plaintiff, that part of the temporary order restraining the County Clerk from accepting the registers and delivering them, has been stricken out by Judge York. As the suit stands, it is merely to enjoin the Supervisors. Auditor and Treasurer from paying the printing firm for the work done, but not done in accordance with law, the terms of their contract or the bond for $12,000, given as guarantee that, among other things, delivery of the printed registers would be made to the County Clerk ten days before the election.

A TYPOGRAPHICAL ERROR.

Name on the Sample Ballots Incorrectly Spelled.

The election bureau annex to the County Clerk's office is a scene, of bustling activity these days, and yes-terday a staff of men were busily en-gaged in packing the boxes of election supplies and sending out the sam-ple ballots. While so doing it was dis-covered that a quantity of the ballots bore the name of "John Rurns," instead of John Burns, running as an Independent candidate agains

THE REFORMED POPULIST

ROM recent develvopments I should judge the Illinois henyard was governed by a dyed-in-thewool anarchistic Tanner rooster whose cerebral machinery is consider ably out of order. In a recent addres this chanticleer of diabolarchical de structivity emitted a pitiful crow fo his own satisfaction, attempting there the massacring of defenseless Africans who came into the State to find thei 'life, liberty and pursuit of happiness swept away by a Tanner gubernatoria ments through Gatling-gun oratory.

According to this negroid-hating Ya 100, the black men who came from the South to indulge in the pleasing pastregisters should not be distributed to Ill., were "a mob" of "foreigners," black all the precincts before that date, it highway robbers who had forcibly inscertain that 164 precincts could not vaded a peacable commonwealth to vaded a peacable commonwealth to take from the citizens thereof the jobs they had heretofore held. They were they had heretofore held. They were the dark pin-feathers on the back of the American eagle which must be shaved off with the modern sword of Damocles or shot therefrom with the Gatling guns of a peacock-strutting

Tanner.

His reasonings from analogy of the importation of foreign labor into this country from other nations, European and Asiatic, are reasonings "irrelevant, incompetent and immaterial," as the lawyers would say, and do not come within forty miles of the subject under discussion.

But we will look at his phraseology a bit. What is a mob? A mob is an un-bit. What is a mob? A mob is an unlawful or riotous assembly, a disorderly crowd, a gang of individuals orderly crowd, a gang of individuals or-ganized for purposes of destruction, either of property or life. The criminal instinct is the anti-social instinct, and if the anti-social instict predominated society would soon cease, and anarchy or chaos reign. Anarchy is the en-thronement of ochlocracy or moboc-thronement of ochlocracy or mobocracy.

The French revolution was an object lesson of the reign of anarchy, the beautiful rule of mobocracy.

Did these Afro-Americans, people born in America, and citizens of this republic, assemble in any bleod-thirsty spirit, with any destructive or criminal intent, in a riotous or disorderly manner, that the Gatling gun should be an extemporaneous speaker to belch forth fire and death in angry tones of dissonance?

Was it a black crowd of razor-slash-to belch forth fire and death in angry tones of dissonance?

Was it a black crowd of razor-slashing Africanos with razors in its boots and blood in its eye, that raised a sickening terror in the minds of the Virdenites, that Gov. Tanner should "meet it at the State line and shoot it to pieces with Gatling guns," as he now threatens to do?

Were these people criminals concocting a conspiracy to burn the houses of the peace-loving citizens of Virden, Ill., to incinerate the bodies of those not too green to burn, or were they merely trying to obtain employment honestly, legitimately, and in an orderly way? If the latter, then the shooting of these men was a most dastardly and contemptible crime; and the Tanner autocrat should be given a dose of the medicine he would prescribe to others.

What is a foreigner? A foreigner, according to Tanner's dictionary, may be a different kind of an animal than is commonly understood. What constitutes a foreigner? Does a black face and a kinky wool, a flat nose and thick lips constitute per se a foreigner? Is a negro or negress born in Georgia a foreigner in Illinois? Is a baby born in Sonoma county a foreigner in Los Angeles county? Is a person born twenty-two years ago in San Francisco a foreigner in New York City? Is an eastern tourist born in New York State a foreigner in California? Answer the above queries afirmatively, and you state a proposition absolutely absurd, and contrary to both law and common sense.

What is a foreigner? A foreigner is an individual very easily defined, for he is one not only born of a different race and in a different country, but he is very often of the same race having the same general racial characteristics and ethnological attributes. He is born, however, in a different country, having a different language, institutions, prejudices and historically different national traditions. In fact, so greatly diverse from us is often a foreigner's mind that it is very hard work to change the tenor of his thought into a different channel. Hence, we have in embryo other nations representd and built up in our own domain. We have little Germanys, little Hollands, little Swedens, little Prussias, little Italys, etc., etc., all keeping the usages and traditions of the Fatherland intact. These cannot, by very virtue of the character of their minds, become good citizens. But I fail to see usages and traditions of the Fatherland intact. These cannot, by very virtue of the character of their minds, become good citizens. But I fail to see why their children, provided opportunities allow them a chance for study and advancement, should not be as good citizens as those who have been here for several generations, and have thoroughly gotten the American ozone mixed into their blood.

The gubernatorial chair seems to have unsettled Tanner's headplece, and thrown it a bit sideways, given him a first-class case of swelled head in the early morning of his administration, so much so that some of my Illinois friends tell me his hat is about three acres too small for him.

American civilization is, I believe, different from any other civilization upon earth. What is a civilization? Civilizator (Civilizator) ferent from any other civilization upon earth. What is a civilization? Civili-

Upon the kind and character of citizens or subjects of a nation depends the character of that national civilization, for from an ignorant people grows a crude or despotic civilization from an intelligent and enlightened people grows a civilization of liberty and knowledge.

Civilization depends upon the home, the home depends upon the ability and the opportunity, for the homemaker to obtain employment where he can make a living, for, by earning a living he obtains the means whereby he can make a home for himself and mate. But if menare not allowed to go from one State to another in search of employment a home for himself and mate. But if menare not allowed to go from one State to another in search of employment their right to work and hence to life is cut off, and the distinct claim of the Declaration of Independence to "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness," is nullified and made void.

Gov. Tanner is the highest authority in the State of Illinois, but there are laws of order which even Gov. Tanner must be bound to respect, and these are based upon the constitutional law of the land which, if violated, by any authority, however high, makes such authority a lawless criminal in the eyes of an impartial justice. It metters not whether such high offender be "Bloody Bridles" Walte, Anarchist-Pardoning Altgeld, "Mazzard-Thwacking" Pennoyer, a rifle-dieting, bullet-giving Illinois Tanner, or our own dear would be Gov. Maguire of our own particular State. In fact, the offense committed by such high authority is so much the greater and the Benedict Arnolds in high official place are criminal tricksters, who, by breaking the law themselves, form odious precedents whereby excuse is made by the clowning clamjamphrie for following the excuple of the illustrious and the great.

If they are handsome monument will be erected in this city, one that will compare fav-orably with any such shaft on the Pa-orably with any such shaft on the Pacific Coast.

The plan was not suggested by the officers of the regiment. It originated with some humble private, just who, no one knows, and although the officers have signified their willingness to assist the project in every way possible, the plan is one of the enlisted men, and if the monument is erected it will be through the efforts of the men who would have had the fighting to do had the regiment been called into active iservice against any enemy of the country. As yet the matter has been dealt with only in a general way, for no detailed plans have been formulated, but those of the men who are working hardest for the monument are making their plans carefully, both to avoid any antagonism or unorganized effort and to place the matter on such a basis as will insure its success. Among the members of the regiment the matter has been carefully talked over in camp, and the first question that was to be settled was that of the location of the monument. It has been decided that the shaft will be erected in this city in one of the parks, yet to be selected. The amount of money which it was desired to raise was the next important matter and those who have been working on the plan have which it was desired to raise was the next important matter and those who have been working on the plan have decided that they will attempt to raise at least $3000. That amount would pay for a handsome monument and if more than that is secured, the monument can be made of proportionately more elaborate design.

The soldiers themselves believe they can start the list for the regiment with about $500, that amount to be made by voluntary contributions from among ruce sometime this month. The entire regiment will assemble in this city about the 12th inst. for muster out, and for a week or more it will remain here as a regiment, that length of time being necessary to arrange the details for the muster out and to account to the government for the property that has been suggested that on this occasion the monument fund could be largely increased by a benefit regimental drill, given at some enclosed place, say Agricultural Park. Thousands of people in this city and from the other cities where companies of the command are stationed would willingly pay a small admission fee to witness such a drill, the gross receipts of which would go to the monument fund. When the regiment was in San Trancisco it gave several exhibition at the several exhibition for list and Mechanics' Pavilion, no one of which netted less than $500.

If the fund assumes such proportions as to insure the success of the plan, the city will be requested to assist not by a cash contribution, but by building the foundation and pedestal of the monument. The reason for this request would be that the monument to be active ould afford to help pay for.

FASHODA, THE FAIR.

Facts and Features of the Place and Its People.

Its People.

[M. L. Rayne in Chicago Times-Herald:] The British bulldog is never happy unless his bone is one of contention, and just at present his fondest dreams are realized, for France is gnawing at the other end, and Fashoda is the bone of contention. There is fascination in the name, as though it might be that of some fair African queen. But Fashoda is first of all a district near the confluence of the two Niles, the white and the blue, and next it is a town, a government station for the lodgment of British troops or Egyptian troops under British rule, and it lies in the Shillook country, 618 miles from Khartoum, and is a fortified town with walfs and flanking towers. The islands of Papyrus lift their fronded palms to air within the radius of Fashoda, and the lotus lilies grow in profusion in the shallows, the masses of snowy blossoms that open at sunrise, giving to the wild, buxuriant landscape a scene of vegetable pomp and splendor that can be witnessed in such barbaric purity in no other part of the world. Forests of sont trees cover the islands, and the doun-palm and tamarind tree grow to magnificent size. The atmosphere is warm and soft, and not particularly healthy, for the dreaded jungle fever exists there and epidemic's rage in the wet seasons. The European drinks good liquors and takes his medicine chest with him, and soon learns the secret of conquering the climate.

soon learns the secret of conquering the climate.
Native Fashodians are of various degrees of black, brown or copper-color, according to the grease with which they anoint their hodies. Some traveler remarked of them that their color clothed them. They break off their lower front teeth early in life, and this gives them a most unprepossessing look. The Europeans have insisted on the people in the town wearing clothes, and they are beginning to look more civilized in the cast-off garments that are given to them.

exercise of the slave law and removed the officials who in any way countenanced it. This was brought about by the individual efforts of a few explorers, such as Sir Samuel Baker and his noble wife, Lady Baker. That was when the city of Fashoda was in the hands of the Egyptians, who sent their criminals—who were condemned to life exile—there to a hostile and wretched town, an insalubrious climate, and a Shillook king, who lived like his people, in a thatched mud cottage. Small wonder that Fashoda was then called the city of the dead.

How long the English have been making eyes at Fashoda does not appear, but a safe guess would be a half century. The spirit of enterprise which seizes an unclaimed rock in midocean, plants the British flag on its apex and adds it to British territory has asserted itself, but Fashoda is no wave-washed rock, but a fertile country, embracing millions of people to become British subjects. France has not a chance except in postponing her defeat, while, according to the etiquette of the war code, the matter is discussed between dignitaries. But when the first bugle blows—that will be another story. The people of that country are not to be considered. They are babarians redeemed from slavery. Their lives have been those of passivity and ignorance. Now that they are wearing clothes in a half-hearted way they declare that it was from necessity and not from choice they went naked. They are not fighters like the Turks, but prefer to eat the lotus and dream away life like sleepy animals. But they know good from evil, have certain rude laws, and will give little trouble to invaders.

Elephant hunting will be one of the entertainments of the new African tertire.

laws, and will give little trouble to invaders.

Elephant hunting will be one of the entertainments of the new African territory. Wild boars also abound, and monkeys are as pientiful as specimens for the naturalist as are desirable, but every year their numbers grow less, as they are wantonly shot by European sportsmen. The gray African parrot has been an object of commerce, fine specimens rating as high as $100.

Valuable woods for commercial purposes are found in the forests, but the wealth of much of that territory is still a sealed book to explorers. Fields of wheat, of rice and acres of sugar cane, all irrigated by the waters of the Nile, coffee of a new and improved variety, can be cultivated on land that is now wastage. And more than the rich benefits of production will be the stronghold for England in the heart of the great district of Fashoda and within the garrisoned walls of the capital city.

The patrol wagon was summoned and the injured man was removed to the hospital, where he writhed in agony and retained his consciousness almost up to the time of his death, which occurred at 2:27 o'clock. The body was sent to Orr & Hine's morgue, where an inquest will be held today.

Peter C. Campbell was well known in local business circles. He was for a long while secretary and treasurer of the Alta Planing Mill Company. About two months ago he sold out his interest in the planing mill and became associated with the management of the paper mill at Lynwood, near Compton. He was presumably on his way to Lynwood when the accident happened. He had money and checks to a considerable amount in his pockets. which were cut open by the car wheels, and some of the coin was scattered along the railroad track. It was all picked up and sent to the Police Station along with the mangled remains of the victim. Campbell resided at No. 1457 Court street. His family consisted of a wife and six or seven children, the youngest a babe only a few days old. One of his sons, a lad of 10. called at the Police Station shortly after his father's death. He had heard he was hurt and came to learn particulars. The poor boy was heartbroken when informed of the sad realities. Capt. Roberts, with moisture about his own eyes that betokened his sympathy more than words, tried to comfort the little fellow, while he sent some one to break the news gently to the rest of the family. some one to break the news gently the rest of the family.

For the nine months ending with September the total imports were valued at $475,172,777, a decrease of over $113,500,000 as compared with the corresponding period of last year. The figures show a shifting of the proportion between the dutiable and non-dutiable imports as compared with the year before. In the nine months ending with September, 1897, the non-dutiable imports showed an excess of over $16,100,000 in excess of those paying a duty, while for the nine corresponding months of this year the dutiable imports exceeded in value those free gf duty by over $66,100,000. The total & borts for the nine months were valued at $869,127,868, an increase of over $122,800,000, as compared with the corresponding period of last year. The excess of exports for the nine menths was $393,955,091 as compared with $157,483,333 in nine months of 1887.

Gold imports for the month of September amounted to $16,820,041, an increase of nearly $12,100,000 as compared with September last year and an excess of more than $13,700,000 over the exports. For the nine months of 1887. The excess of exports for september were valued at $121,407,872 as compared with $16,610,835 in nine months of 1887. The excess of imports amounted to $114. September were valued at $121,407,872 as compared with $16,610,835 in nine months of 1887. The excess of imports amounted to $114. September were valued at $127,407,872 as compared with $15,157,103, an excess of $2,651,300 over the imports. For the nine months' period the exports were valued at $35,157,103, an excess of $2,551,300 over the imports. For the nine months' period the exports were valued at $35,500 an excess of $2,51,300 over the imports. For the nine months and the nine months ending with September were valued at $30,413,03, being over $119,200,000 less than that for the preceding years. So the totals for each of the twelve months and the nine months ending with September were lower than for either of t over $155,800,000 as compared with the preceding year.

Ordered the great of the sailors call it, to prevent this. But an English ship builder seems to have found a remedy. The British steamer Trunkby is named because she carries of her deck, which, after her hold is a trunk running along the entire length full, is also filled with grain. As the grain settles, the vacant space is filled from the feeder above; and in this way the hold is always kept full and the grain settles, the vacant space is filled from the feeder above; and in this way the hold is always kept full and the cargo cannot shift.

[ASSOCIATED PHESS NIGHT REPORT.]

CHICAGO, Nov. 2.—Rumored complications between Great Britain and Russia gave wheat a firm start. The opening advance was added to by heavy foreign acceptances, very early in the session, reporting fitty boatloads accepted on last night's cable offerings to the other side and a Chicago house also had fifteen boatloads accepted direct. English consols were % per cent. lower than the recent average. The seaboard clearances were not extraordinarily heavy, however, while the aggregate of western primary market receipts were enormous, amounting to 1,555,000 bushels against 1,123,000 bushels, the corresponding day of last year. In addition to this, the early drop in British consols fully recovered about the middle of the session. That was too much for the buils, and the market dropped back to the opening price, before it took another upward flight. Buda Pesth was reported 3% higher. Corn: lower cables and the expectation of increased receips on account of the improved weather weakened corn at the start. A great deal of long corn was old, and for a time the course of the market was downward. In the last hour, the tendency changed with wheat, and in the end became strongly upward on heavy buying by shorts. The market railled upon corn for the strength. The sellers of yesterday changed their views, and bought back what they had disposed of. Provisions—The unexpectedly heavy decrease in the stocks of lard caused a better feeling in provisions. The reduction in stocks was 55,000 tierces. The English bouses opposed the advance in prices, and sold heavily of lard. Pork rose 15 cents; lard, 106124, and ribs 5671%.

1.6CAL PRODUCE MARKETS

Local cheese-makers gave notice yesterday morning that their products would be \(\frac{1}{4} \) a cent higher, making prices I cents for cheddars, 15 for Young America and 16 for 3-lb. Anad-made.

Beans are still weak for pinks and Lady Washingtons and firm for Limas and navy.

Flour is firm, under the influence of better prices for wheat.

Eggs are firm at last quotations, and that is the condition of butter also.

There is an inquiry for dried peaches in round lots at easy prices, but holders want very stiff figures for what few they have. The retail trade is not disposed to dip deep into dried fruits, and this makes jobbers careful, No California dried fruit can be sold East at less than 15 to 20 cents, excepting pruges. Consumption is slow at such prices.

There is a wonderful medicine for troubles of this description, that has stood the test for thirty years, and has been used successfully by many thousands of women. It is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It acts directly on the delicate and important organs concerned and makes them strong, healthy and vigorous. It allays inflammation, heals ulceration and soothes pain. It tones and builds up the nerves. It is the discovery of Dr. R. V. Pierce, an eminent and skillful specialist, for thirty years chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, at Buffalo, N. Y. This is one of the greatest medical institutions in the whole world. During the thirty years that Dr. Pierce has been at its head he has gained the unbounded respect of his fellow citizens at Buffalo, and they showed it by making him their represents. his fellow citizens at Buffalo, and the his fellow citizens at Buffalo, and they showed it by making him their representative in the National Congress, from which position he resigned to give the remainder of his life to the practice of his chosen profession. ESCAPED FROM THE ASYLUM. ESCAPED FROM THE ASYLUM.

Mrs. C. Withm of Cypress avenue received a telegram this evening stating that her husband had escaped from the Insane Asylum at Highlands. The dispatch occasioned considerable alarm, and the police were notified to be on the watch for Witham, a dangerous lunatic, who was committed after having threatened and tried to kill his wife and had expressed murderous designs upon his brother-in-law. It is supposed by the Highlands officials that he headed for this city. The poor fellow was made insane by a kick from a horse a year or two ago, and has steadily grown worse. He is 47 years of age. No details as to the manner of his escape have been received.

Brown, chief of the Santa Ana fire department, to appropriate for the benefit of the fire department of the county a sum derived by the taxation of foreign insurance companies doing business in the State, as directed by the County Government Act. The law has been declared unconstitutional, but the commissioner has levied the tax and collected it, which will give the departments in Orange county about $200.

R. M. Dunham and H. C. Kellogg appeared before the board in reference to a road, artesian well, and fences in the New Hope road district. The matter was referred to Supervisor Hawkins.

In the matter of the claim of the county of Orange against the State for alleged overpaid moneys, it was resolved to employ Messrs. Rodgers, Patterson & Slack and Delvin & Delvin to assist the District Attorney in prosecuting the claim, their compensation to be 15 per cent. of the sum collected. The chairman was also authorized to enter into a contract to collect the aforesaid claims, as per resolution of the board. The Auditor was instructed to withhold from Santa Ana city taxes $150, the same being the expense of the Auditor was instructed to withhold from the general road fund to the Newport district; also $750 to Delhi, and $300 to the Fullerton district.

Some days ago Mayor Reed and President Thomas of the Chamber of Commerce wired a cordial invitation to Admiral Palliser, commanding the British North Pacific squadron, to visit San Diego Harbor with the flagship Imperieuse, on his way south. A reply was received today from the Admiral, thanking the gentlemen for the offer, and stating that a reply had been forwarded by mail. Admiral Palliser has often said that he would visit San Diego whenever a chance offered, and especially in case of cruises in the Sauth Pacific, as this port was very convenient for coaling his vessels.

The Imperieuse, Amphion, Leander, Sparrowhawk, Virago and Pheasant are likely to call here. They have all visited this port, and in the case of the destroyers Virago and Sparrowhawk, they are compelled to make frequent stops for coal. They are thirty-two knot vessels, of the latest pattern of torpedobat destroyers.

He began straightening out the wires and suddenly received a shock in his right forearm and left hand, having rested his hand on one wire while he took hold of another with his fingers. He fell backward, but the safety belt saved him from being dashed to death on the sidewalk below.

He soon recovered and went to the Receiving Hospital, where Dr. Hagan dressed his burns and sent him home. The current had burned quite a hole in the right arm just below the elbow, and also in the palm of the left hand.

The Letter He Wrote to His Friends
When He Forgave His Wife.
The engagement of Miss Eda Sickles, daughter of Gen. Daniel E. Sickles of New York, is an extremely interesting announcement, because the young woman bears a name which at once recalls one of the most remarkable tragedies of the last generation. Gen. Sickles shot and killed Philip Barton Key, son of Francis Scott Key (who wrote "The Star Spangled Banner"), in 1859, because he had dishonored his wife. Gen. Sickles then forgave his erring wife, and, in the tumult of criticism, he reinstated Mrs. Sickles in his home, and published this answer to his friends:
"My reconciliation with my wife was my own act, done without consultation with any relative, connection, friend or adviser. Whatever blame, if any, belongs to the step should fall upon me. "I am prepared to defend what I have done before the only tribunal I recognize as having the slightest claim to jurisdiction over the subject—my own concience and the bar of heaven. No "Remember the Maine" Signal. [Iowa State Register:] In his speech at the Chicago peace jubilee banquet last week Capt. Sigsbee of the battle-ship Texas, formerly the captain of its Sistes, battleship, the ill-fated Maine, knocked to pieces the popular impression that "Remember the Maine" was the signal displayed by the vessels in the United States navy during the war with Spain whenever there came a time for action. He said that there was a general belief among the people of this country that the signal-referred to was flying at the masthead of every flagship when going into action, "but," said he, "it is absolutely untrue. No vessel in any fleet or squadron of the United States has gone into this war flying the official signal "Remember the Maine, and I, as captain of the Maine, glory in it. A nation may, go to war to punish, but never to revenge—not this nation." The fact cannot be ignored-that the army and navy of the United States did remember the Maine, and that the enemy was given a chance to remember it, but it is well perhaps that the signal has been corrected. And while on this subject, it is an opportune time to state that the joking way in which "Remember the Maine" is now being used on the stage, and it is sad commentary upon a man's pa-triotism when he uses the words in a jest. The lost battleship Maine, and the several hundred heroes who died on duty, fill too sacred a grave in the hearts of the people to be mentioned in lest.

REFUNDED HIS MONEY.

FRANK GARRETT'S SUIT AGAINS THE WALLACE SHOWS.

Circus People Compelled to Disgorge the Price of Unhonored Tickets. Threatened Attachment of Elephant's Trunk and Other

he Great Wallace Shows on Tuesday evening did not known how narrowly they missed seeing the performance. The fact of the matter is that Deputy Constable John W. Menzer, better known in Boyle Heights social circles as Baron Johannes von Menzer, went to the circus just as the entertainment was about to begin, armed with authority to stop the whole blooming show for such time at least as the claim of Frank Garrett, Esq., against the circus, agreements, against the circus, agreements, against the circus, against the circus against the circ cus aggregation remained unsettled Menzer only allowed the performance to proceed after the utmost farthing of Garrett's claim for $8, plus $7 costs, Garrett's claim for indemnity from the circus arose from the fact that he was one of the many unfortunates who purenased tickets for the first night's berformance, and reached the big tent only to find the entrance closed and hundreds of ticket-holders being turned away. Garrett did not care so much for himself but he had with him a party of friends, 'way-up society people of Pasadena and Los Angeles and he felt chagrined to see them disappointed. He, therefore, demanded to have the price of his eight tickets refunded, and also intimated to the circus people that they ought to pay the hack hire for the entire party, for they had gone to the circus in style.

The stony-hearted circus men told Mr. Garrett that he and his friends could use their tickets to see the elephant on the following day. They laughed at Garrett's request to have his money refunded and reviled him with coarse and brutal language, when he insisted upon a settlement.

But Mr. Garrett, being a rising young attorney, knew a few points of law which he was sure would bring the showmen to time. Leaving his card with the would-be Barnums he promised them they would hear from him again. Then he drove off with his friends and spent the next day in devising a scheme to bring the wicked circus men to book.

Not wishing to act as attorney in a case in which he was plaintiff, Garrett employed Variel & Variel to draw up a cinch complaint against John Doe and Richard Roe, associated together under the name of the Great Wallace Shows, Bert Davis, Samuel Hoe and William Goe, whose true names were to the plaintiff unknown, but all of whom were supposed to have proprietary interests in the circus, praying for judgment against the defendants named, for $8 and costs of suit, all on account of | the eight reserved-seat tickets which plaintiff bought for himself and friends, and from which they derived no benefit.

The complaint was filed with Justice Morrison late Tuesday afternoon, and attachment papers were issued and placed in the hands of Baron von Menzer for making a spiel at attaching the ticket-wagon receipts. This brought the show wagon receipts. This brought the show people to time, and they hastened to fork over Garrett's $$ and $7 besides for costs. Baron von Menzer was given to boot a free pass to see the wild man of Borneo and all the other freaks in the sideshow.

Thus released from attachment, the circus was allowed to complete its engagement and the people who had paid for admission sat through the performance all unconscious of the narrow escape they had from not getting their money's worth.

"Swellest" At the Lowest

The main point about our Hats is "Style." The main point about our prices is "lowness" You need not fear to pick up a Hat in our store because you expect the price to scare you. Like as not the Hat you like the most will be the very one that cost the least. You can't say as much for many millinery stores.
